This Is PRINCETON

WELCOME!

Come to Our House. New to America, hesitant about the language, eager to observe and to learn everything about this strange and fabled country, but homesick perhaps, and shy, the foreign graduate student who comes to Princeton finds the welcoming door open wide for him the day he steps off the train.

The International Student Hospitality Committee opens that welcoming door. The 50 volunteer hostesses affiliated with the Committee not only entertain these foreign students, but offer them continuing hospitality and friendship in Princeton homes throughout the year.

For many years, there has been informal contact between foreign graduate students on one hand and townspeople on the other, but a formal hospitality organization has only existed for two years.

Mrs. Walter Wagoner is president of the Committee and Mrs. Peter M. Grosz is secretary.

This is the way it works. A Princeton family asks to join the program, probably through Mrs. Grosz. Late in the summer, Mrs. Grosz sends each volunteer hostess the names of two students who are expected to arrive at the Graduate College for the fall term.

If she can, Mrs. Grosz matches the hostess to her students. Some families would like to make friends with Africans, others prefer Europeans. Some ask for a young man who is interested in music, others would like an active sportsman.

Tea and Friendship. On a Sunday in mid-September, a welcoming tea for all foreign graduate students and their host families is held at the Graduate College. It is here that families and students first meet one another, although the tea is so lively and the lounge so filled with Danish accents and Japanese accents and the proper Oxonian of Indians and Nigerians that nobody can really plunge into the depths of friendship.

From that Sunday, the host family is expected to carry on alone. Mrs. Grosz asks that hostesses extend their first invitation before mid-October, during that first, floundering time when a young man new to the country is wondering where to find firm ground.

And she is very firm about this: the hostess will receive a polite call to see whether she has fulfilled her assignment, and if time goes by and she has not, her students will be given to somebody who will.

Mostly, however, the host family is eager to respond. (Of the 50 families, less than a dozen have been delinquent this year, Mrs. Grosz reports.)

Here's Princeton. What do you do with a young man new to town and country? Mrs. Henry Sommer drove a nuclear physicist from India and a historian from Nigeria all around Princeton, showing them post-office, banks, a supermarket, and the general layout of the streets. She also drove them past Einstein's house — almost every foreign

Current Issue of TOWN TOPICS Sets Records

The current 64-page issue of TOWN TOPICS, containing more than 5700 column inches of news, pictures and advertising, is the largest newspaper ever published in Princeton. TOWN TOPICS is deeply appreciative of this reflection of its advertisers' confidence, which has resulted in a 14.3% increase over the corresponding issue of a year ago. In order to maintain a proper balance between advertising and news, not all of the display advertising submitted for publication could be accepted.

student asks to see it, and many want to see where J. Robert Oppenheimer lives as well.

"We invited them for dinner," Mrs. Sommer recalls, "and then took them to that PAIIR meeting, the one where Bruce Wright spoke so critically of Princeton and the Negro. When they came back, I asked the Nigerian student whether he had enjoyed the evening. He thought a moment and then he said, 'I wouldn't say I enjoyed myself — but I found it very interesting.'"

In Nigeria, one pays a call after an invitation such as this, and so the student did — unannounced. Now Mrs. Sommer suggests that he come at a specific time, such as after chapel on Sunday, and he does, joining the family as they rake leaves in the yard, or telling them about his own family. "My father has just been elected chief to rule over 19,000 people," he commented one day.

This student sent a proper and formal letter to the Sommers' daughter Julia, inviting her to a student dance. "Was it all right that I invited her?" he asked Mrs. Sommer anxiously, and Mrs. Sommer said, of course Julia is a junior at Princeton High.

Today, Paul Is a Young Man of Promise

(From the 1963 Town Topics Christmas Appeal)

"The case of 14-year old Paul, the only child of his mother's first marriage and dreadfully resentful of his stepfather as a usurper, documents how agencies working in cooperation can turn a mixed-up boy from one path to another. A deep admirer of his father, a virile, athletic man, who died tragically in an automobile accident, Paul harbored a mistaken conception of manliness and, until apprehended and referred to the Family Service Agency by the Police, blindly followed at times criminal examples of boys years older than himself. A wise teacher-coach, after-school jobs and sponsored memberships in service groups snapped the behavior pattern and brought a potential juvenile delinquent "back to society" as a young man of promise."

Six days after the 1963 Christmas appeal was published in last week's issue, TOWN TOPICS had received $1,142.20. The gifts made are used not only at Christmas but throughout the coming year to aid in the rehabilitation of Princeton area children, with all funds administered by the Family Service Agency.

Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund and mailed to TOWN TOPICS, P.O. Box 664, Princeton. Gifts of cash may be left at TOWN TOPICS, 4 Mercer Street.

How Should I Behave? Manners in a new land can present a problem, but students find it easier to learn from a sympathetic American family than from a stranger's rebuff. One of Mrs. Sommer's students was puzzled. "So many Americans say 'Do come see us again.' Do they really mean this, or should I wait for an invitation?" (Her advice: wait.)

And American families learn, too, especially if they entertain Nigerian students, who have been brought up to regard women as members of a very low order indeed. Two Princeton families have amusing stories to tell about Nigerians.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mitnaul became well-acquainted last year with a young Nigerian who was immensely helpful around the house — carrying in groceries from the car and so on — but only in those tasks which he saw Mr. Mitnaul perform. Anything else was out.

"That boy was horrified at the way I talked to my husband," Mrs. Mitnaul laughs. "Once I said in a casual kind of way, 'If you're in such a hurry, get it yourself.' Well! The idea of a woman talking like that! He couldn't get over it."

This Nigerian, who came to Princeton in 1962, was not particularly concerned about civil rights at the time, although the Mitnauls, who are a Negro family, assured him that the issue was vital and difficult. He has now left Princeton, and Mrs. Mitnaul has recently learned of his deep involvement with various civil rights activities.

Mrs. Gibson Dailey's family absorbed a Nigerian student the eventually called Mrs. Dailey "Mommy" who was lordly toward the three teen-age Dailey daughters. "I have given you my opinion and that's final!" he would say, about such matters as hair rollers for instance. Before long, the girls began giving it back to him, and he was quite nonplussed. In Nigeria, girls don't talk back.

Later, he confided to "Mammy" that a friend had warned him about American girls. "If you're friendly, they'll take offense, my friend told me. So I treat your daughters as I would my own sisters."

Home-Cooking. Not all families grow as close to their students and there is no need to, if the family doesn't want it that way. But a continuing relationship is what the committee asks.

"We usually invite the students when our friends are here with their kids," Mrs. Dailey explains; "a kind of informal party mixing adults and young people."

The Daileys had a post-Thanksgiving dinner for two Germans, two Englishmen, two Yugoslavs and the one Russian who is in the Graduate School this year.

"How they love a home-cooked meal!" Mrs. Dailey laughs. "We've taken them on drives into the country, too, and to a couple of concerts. They are eager to come, and we've always found a quick and friendly rapport."

Foreign Cooking. Students like to reciprocate and to cook for their host families, as Mrs. Grosz has found. She took an Indian student on a supermarket tour so that he could select the foods for a chicken curry.

"He brought a Pakistani student friend, and they took over my kitchen while the children watched," Mrs. Grosz says. "It was an absolutely delicious meal, and later on, he made a lamb curry for us."

Mrs. Mitnaul likes to serve her students standard American fare. "If you cater to their tastes in food, they'll never learn to eat what Americans eat, and don't forget they're going to be here two or three years.

"I always explain the foods I serve: What are cranberries? Why do we serve turkey? African students love corn and sweet potatoes (but no marshmallows!), and actually these boys are eager to try any new food."

One food problem did arise in the Mitnaul household. An English student asked for tea, and Mrs. Mitnaul made it from a teabag. "He'd never seen one before," she says. "He thought maybe you opened it up to let the tea out."

"The questions they ask are fascinating," Mrs. Mitnaul reports. "Our Nigerian boy couldn't understand why there were two men in the same party — Rockefeller and Goldwater — both trying to be president. They ask you things like the population of New Jersey and our Nigerian asked our 12-year-old son to explain baseball. You can imagine how proud a boy would be to do that."

"It's hard to judge what sort of person one's student is," Mrs. Sommer comments. "You feel you can never really get inside him, even though he may be fluent in English. Our African student doesn't ask questions at all, but maybe it's because we ask him so many that he never has a chance."

Controversial political subjects rarely enter into student-family conversation. Boys — and some "boys" of course, are nearly 30 years old — want to know about America and to learn as much as possible about the way America lives.

They love to drive to Washington's Crossing, or out into the country to buy apples on a fall day. Mrs. Grosz took a few up to Flemington for the Fair and they all had a magnificent time.

One hostess (who naturally wants to be anonymous) says that she and her husband prefer graduate students to their own circle of friends, when it comes to a stimulating evening of conversation.

"You can get so tired of nursery school and the stock market," she says, "and these boys are exciting to talk to and to be with. I wouldn't have missed this program for the world."

TOPICS Of the Town

TOWN, GOWN AND BOTTLE

Meeting to Uncork Solution. At the Borough Council meeting on Tuesday, Mayor Henry S. Patterson informed council of a letter he had written to Princeton President Robert F. Goheen about the recent penalty incurred by Cousins Co. because an undergraduate, Joseph M. Anderson '65, had purchased liquor by giving false information on his identity. In the letter he had suggested the advisability of a session to discuss methods for avoiding such occurences in the future.

The mayor read President Goheen's reply to council in which he had named University Vice-President Edgar M. Gemmell and Dean of Students William D'O. Lippincott as his representatives in discussing ways and means to keep underage students out of liquor stores. The mayor said that such a meeting, a kind of summit conference on alcohol, would be set up for next week with members of the Borough and University and representatives of the town's retail liquor stores in attendance.

At Tuesday's council meeting, a letter also was read from John W. Kauffman, administrator of Princeton Hospital. Mr. Kauffman, on behalf of the hospital's board of trustees, requested the waiver of a building permit fee in connection with the hospital's present expansion of its service facilities. Such a waiver has been granted in the past.

The application was approved by a 5-to-1 margin, with Councilman Joseph R. Wood voting "no." Mr. Wood stated that he had cast a similar negative vote against the hospital's plans for modernizing and was voting "no" to the fee waiver request "to be consistent."

New Fire Department Chief. Council unanimously approved the election of new officers of the Princeton fire department. The chief will be Robert F. Mooney, Borough administrator and longtime member of the department, whose father was also chief before him.

Elected to serve as first assistant fire chief under Mr. Mooney is Patrick F. McManimon. Second assistant chief will be Robert H. Schafer.

In another communication, council was informed by the Mercer County engineer's office that the speed limit on that part of Rosedale Road which is in the Borough was being raised from 25 to 45 miles per hour. Because only 400 feet of Rosedale beyond the stop signs at Elm Road are within the Borough, council's opinion was that the increase would probably affect only owners of Jaguar XK-E's — very few cars can accelerate from zero to 45 m.p.h. in that distance.

Council also received a letter from Bernard Glover of the Borough engineer's office asking for approval of after-the-fact variances granted by the zoning board to Murray S. Bailey for converting a single family dwelling unit at 36 Bank Street into two apartments. At the suggestion of Councilman Alan W. Carrick, however, action on the request was postponed until the Borough health department could inspect the much-publicized building to see if its conversion met housing code requirements. Final decision, therefore, will be delayed until the next council meeting, scheduled for December 26.

Mayor Patterson read a letter from Borough engineer Arthur T. Brokaw announcing his resignation, effective on January 1. A resolution of appreciation to Mr. Brokaw for his services as head of the engineering department was introduced by Council President Ellwood W. Godfrey and unanimously endorsed.

Another communication read at the meeting suggested the naming of the new public library or a street in memory of the late President John F. Kennedy. The letter was forwarded to the library committee for its consideration.

Other Business. Among other items to come before council on Tuesday were these:

- A request by Joseph Mangone, 76-78 Spruce Street, that he be allowed to construct and use an access driveway to his property over now-unused Bor-

Round-Up

Among the more than 7,000 people who showed up at Princeton's polio vaccine clinics on Sunday (if you didn't, you'll get another chance this Sunday), was one lady who was obviously about 8-9 months pregnant . when she asked the nurse for a couple of the vaccined sugar lumps, the R.N. guessed that the lady must be thinking that the eating for two" principle applied to vaccine as well.

"Oh, no," the mother-to-be assured her. "It's just that my husband was out late at a party and doesn't feel well enough to get out of the car."

. Consultation with a doctor on duty brought this prescription. A short walk in the fresh air would do the man nothing but good . . . He took it.

Princeton's annual pre-Christmas race—the one against time at the post office—is now going on at top speed, says Postmaster Charles F. Murray . . . Mr. Murray expects this month's mail volume to total 6,324,572 pieces, a prediction of unquestionable preciseness . . . "Our 118 employees need your help to win this race, "he adds. "You can help us by shopping and mailing right now and by using ZIP code numbers in both return and destination addresses."

June - in - January Dep't: Princeton Hospital's June Fete is, for many, almost a year 'round affair . . . Co-chairmen of the 1964 edition are Mrs John C. Whitwell and Mrs John J. Fischer, announces Mrs Bernard Kilgore, president of the hospital's women's auxiliary . . . They and the many other volunteers will start working intensively on plans for the fete right after the first of the year.

A boy from the Nassau Street School stopped in at TOWN TOPICS to discuss Christmas picture possibilities. He recommends the seventh grade Christmas dance. "Not the sixth grade because they don't dance so good, and not the eighth grade because they have the lights out."

The name of the little town of Deans, a few miles north east of Princeton, is well-known to Princetonians who take the late local from New York . . . Deans is the stop where "you'd better start waking up or you'll miss Princeton Junction and not come to until you're in Philadelphia" . . . Last week, Deans just about passed into history or, more likely, into oblivion when Postmistress Helena K. Hummler locked the post office door for the last time, under instructions from the Postmaster General.

Deans got its name in 1831 when the Camden and Amboy Railroad tracks were laid and the railroad needed a name for the little town . . . The two big wheels in town were a Mr. Dean and a Mr. McDowell, and each wanted the place named for himself . . . The railroad promptly picked the name "Deans" because it was the shorter.

But, despite the near demise of Deans as a place name, it will continue as the name of a three-train-a-day railroad stop two in the morning for New York commuters, and that one local back in the evening.

More than 40,000 words were written by TOWN TOPICS staff to provide the latest in news and feature stories for this record-breaking 64-page issue . . . gift suggestions by the dozen are provided in the expanded shopping column, "It's New to Us," beginning on page 7.

Monday night's concert in McCosh 10 is reviewed in Music in Princeton (page 46), which also provides advance news of several holiday season programs in the next ten days . . . a look at the Triangle Club's forthcoming production and a review of the Community Players' current offering head News of the Theatres (pages 5 and 6) . . art on exhibit this month is discussed on page 36.

A new director elected by the First National Bank and two named by Princeton Savings and Loan are pictured in Business in Princeton (page 44), which also reports on undercover police activities resulting in fines levied against three Princeton pharmacies . . . the pending retirement of Princeton's postmaster is reported in a letter to Mailbox (page 42).

Unusual interest in Princeton High School's opening game of the basketball season is reflected in the sports pages (37-41), where a report on the University's winter sports teams and a picture of the 1964 football captain are also to be found . . . many Princeton area residents make news in People in the News (pages 32-34).

What kind of toys give your children lasting enjoyment? Two Princetonians who have made Creative Playthings a major entry in the toy manufacturing field tell you their ideas in an illustrated article on page 41.

Also in Topics of the Town: a Borough official's pending resignation . . . three more accidents in the Township . . . a $420 fine levied against a Princeton landlord for a zoning violation . . . and in News of the Churches (page 47), a further report on the proposed unification of Princeton's three Presbyterian churches.

News Of The THEATRES

TRIANGLE SHOW TO OPEN 'Funny Side Up' at McCarter. The Princeton Triangle Club's 75th Anniversary show "Funny Side Up," opens at McCarter Theater this Thursday at 8:30. Performances will also be given here on Friday and Saturday night and on Saturday afternoon.

"Triangle's laughing again," is the word from the club, "after last year's 'serious' attempt." This year's musical revue satirizes just about everything from "A" (for "astronauts") to "Z" (for "zip codes").

After a year's absence, Milton Lyon has returned to direct this season's show. He has joined choreographer Peter Hamilton to recombine the duo that has brought Triangle success since 1955.

"Funny Side Up" needles folksingers like Peter, Paul and Almond Joy. The Fisher quints are saluted in "Ode to the Bodies by Fisher" for their detonation of the recent population explosion in South Dakota.

Peter Hamilton, the club says, has produced several noteworthy dance sequences for "Funny Side Up" with a crew of the best dancers in recent Triangle history. Foremost among these numbers is a set-to on Mars between American and Russian astro-ladies.

Topping off "Funny Side Up" will be the special "Diamond Jubilee" offering of a score of songs from Triangle shows of the past. The perennial hit "East of the Sun," by Brooks Bowman '36, leads the list.

This year's Triangle orchestra, according to Club President Lee Wright, is "tremendous." Any dissonance from the pit, therefore, promises to be intentional rather than accidental.

After the four performances in Princeton, the club will hit the road for points South as far away as Houston. It will be the first Southern trip for the organization since the mid-thirties.

Ticket sales for the Princeton four-shot have been rapid, and, at last report, Friday and Saturday nights were almost completely sold out. Tickets in all price ranges are still available for this Thursday and for the Saturday matinee.

PLAYERS HIT BULLSEYE In Brecht's "Chalk Circle." The Princeton Community Players have come up with a truly remarkable achievement in their fine production of Bertolt Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle," which opened in Murray Theatre last weekend. The show will be repeated on Friday and Saturday nights of the next two weekends.

The production, using to full advantage the highly laudable talents of the Players' company and technical staff and the exciting, resourceful directing abilities of Edward Earle, is community theater at its most significant — theater that can and does successfully out-experiment the experimental theater.

The Brecht play, which has been variously termed a morality play, folk tale and fable, whether viewed with or without symbolism, is produced with flair and played with verve and enthusiasm by a large cast. Imaginative staging and excellent direction produce results one might well consider impossible for the tiny Murray stage.

One has an impression of great fluidity, with action flowing smoothly in spite of the many actors. Mr. Earle moves his actors on and around and off the small multi-level stage with the skill of an expert in three dimensional chess.

It is a simple tale of good and evil, qualities which are baldly (often obscenely) stated but philosophically and wisely expressed. And despite the frequent use of words and gestures which would make a mule-skinner blanch, the play is essentially moralistic and even puritanical in tone and attitude.

Grusha, a palace kitchen maid, in spite of wisdom and advice, rescues and raises the abandoned child of a governor assassinated during a revolt. Fleeing over mountains and enduring many hardships, she even endures a loveless form-marriage, in spite of her betrothal to a young soldier, in order to support the child of another woman. Good does triumph when at last she is found and brought to trial and a "people's judge," applying Solomon's judgment, awards her the child.

Purposeful confusion is a paramount aspect of the play — the confusion of peoples, of civic order and individual morality under the impact of revolution. It is a tribute to the director and his actors that the confusion always stays within credible and artistic bounds without spilling over into the audience.

Many of the players are masked. This serves dual purpose, since it enables doubling, tripling and even quadrupling of roles, although the chief purpose of the masks is to help convey the stereotypes which are essential to the play's action and to reflect the universality of the story's truths. After the first brief awkwardness of adjustment on the part of the audience, the masks are no hindrance to the enjoyment of the play but rather provide an odd enhancement.

It is almost impossible to single out any specific members of the company for special mention, since the production is in the best sense an all-out "team effort," which is the way Brecht planned it. And, through the team effort, the Princeton Community Players have opened their new season with an impressive accomplishment.

CIRCUS IN JANUARY?

McCarter Says "Yes!" "The Littlest Circus," described as a "miniature magical carnival," will dance into McCarter Theatre for two performances on Saturday, January 4. One show will be given at 11 a.m. and another at 3:30.

Designed for children in the kindergarten fourth grade age group, the circus of eight acrobats and dancers was a hit at the Seattle World's Fair last year. The acts combine dance, pantomime and music in a delightful holiday package for youngsters and McCarter suggests a ticket tucked into the top of a Christmas stocking.

OLE!

Greco, Segovia. Two distinguished Spanish artists, Jose Greco and Andres Segovia, will open McCarter's "January Jubilee," a month-long series of events designed to keep the theatre in shape until the winter spring drama season starts in February.

Jose Greco will bring all 25 of his dancers, singers and musicians to Princeton on Friday, January 3 at 8:30. The renowned Spanish dancer has not appeared in Princeton for four years. The coming appearance in McCarter is part of the Greco troupe's Swedish transcontinental tour.

On Wednesday, January 8, at 8:30 Andres Segovia will play his classic guitar on the McCarter stage. The guitarist has been celebrating the 57th anniversary of his first public appearance in Granada, Spain at the age of four.

In addition to these two, McCarter will present in January a major jazz ensemble an old Broadway hit and a special children's program described elsewhere in "Theatres in Princeton."

GARDEN

The Suitor (through Tuesday) is a remarkably funny movie, the first feature-length picture by Frenchman Pierre Etaix. Anyone who was lucky enough to see "Happy Anniversary," one of the most entertaining shorts to come to Princeton in this or any other year, will know why — Etaix was the writer, director and star, and "The Suitor" is just as happily crazy stuff.

For those who haven't seen "Happy Anniversary," Pierre Etaix is a clown of rare talent. Somehow he is able to blend the touching wistfulness of Charlie Chaplin with the stone face pointings of Buster Keaton and the bouncing-ball springiness of Harold Lloyd.

There really isn't much of a story line in "Suitor." There doesn't have to be. Etaix (who pronounces his name strangely enough, to rhyme with "latex") plays the part of a properly raised young Frenchman whose mother and father are trying to shoo him into marriage.

Hung on this thin story line, though, is a basketful of sight gags and situational absurdities equal to anything ever issued by the old Hal Roach studios. Etaix is well along the way to being peerless as a comedian, and "The Suitor" is fully admissable as evidence of that fact.

PLAYHOUSE

West Side Story (through Tuesday) is a return engagement of the musically and choreographically spotless film drama made from the Broadway prize-winning show. The movie edition of the story has won a few prizes, too, earning ten Oscars for best this, that and the other.

Everyone must know the story by now. Romeo-and-Juliet among the tenements, with the Montagu and Capulet hassle adapted for gang rumbles. Among its many assets are music by Bernstein, choreography by Robbins and a fine cast playing the part of vicious juveniles right up to the hilt of their switchblades.

In the cast are, among others, Natalie Wood, Richard Beymer, Russ Tamblyn, George Chakiris and Rita Moreno. The theme is, of necessity, pretty stark and unhappy, but it's handled with taste, vigor and skill.

PRINCE

Palm Springs Weekend (now playing) is for teens only. It also provides a setting for a number of relatively new, youthful faces, but it goes no farther than that.

Troy Donahue and Connie Stevens carry most of the feather-light burden of the story, which frequently gets lost in the concentration of fun-and-games. These include such unmemorable items as a detergent-filled swimming pool, a free-for-all at a plush home and a strange game of playing bumper-tag with convertibles.

If you are young enough to find such activities diverting, you'll probably also want to know that Troy Donahue lifts his voice in song in the clear desert air. Otherwise, you probably couldn't care less.

FERNANDEL FILM NEXT

In French Club Series. "Le Fruit Defendu" featuring Fernandel in search of "forbidden fruit," will be presented at McCarter Theater Tuesday at 8 p.m. by the Princeton University French Club.

Made in 1952, the film is in French with English subtitles. Fernandel, according to The New Yorker, gives "a performance than cannot be faulted."

Admission will be by tickets purchaseable at the box office at cents for all students, Princeton University personnel and their wives, 75 cents for all others.

PLAYERS PLAN PARTY

To Replace Meeting. The Pennington Players will hold a Christmas party Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rees of Mt. Rose Road.

The party, which replaces the normal monthly meeting, will be the organization's final activity until the new year. At the Players' last gathering, Philip J. Smith, an actor, director and teacher, spoke on interpretation of plays and characters.

GREEN AND GAY

Christmas At Home. Decorating for Christmas can bring indoors the real grey-green of pine and balsam from the woodland, or it can bring to your holiday the delightful artifice of tinsel, glitter and man-made mistletoe.

This week, we invite you to decorate your house and to examine with us the gifts for the home that we have found on a tour of the shops.

Flower Coop's Flemish arrangements by Jean Balli are rich and sombre, rather like a sumptuous fruitcake. M Balli has taken holly, balsam, walnuts, pine and mistletoe berries and tiqued them gently with gold to make bouquets that are darkly green and gold, touched faintly with red.

A nine-candleabra, twined with a Flemish garland, is $40, but you may have a small arrangement in a compote for $5. A single three-foot candlestick is $30, but you may prefer an informal black wrought iron candlestick with the golden green arranged in pleasing asymetry.

All of Flower Coop's offerings are man-made, as you know. Buy a $2.50 holly arrangement in a shallow black container and you'll have it for a life-time. There's a holly wreath, too, for your front door, and a Kissing Ball of mistletoe with red rope and brocade.

Is It Raining Inside My Car?

If you're tired of giving socks and aprons, you may find our brief catalogue of unusual gifts something to help you through your Christmas list.

Car Barometer. Compass for automobile mounts inside your car and not only tells you where you're going, but provides you with altimeter and barometer so you'll know whether you are going up a hill, and what the weather is like inside and outside the car. Tiger Auto.

Wall Fountain. A delightful little Armor stone pixie face pours out a cascade of water to enchant your garden next summer. Comes with pump. Howe Nurseries, Pennington.

Alpine flowers. Real Swiss flower that grow at 6,000 feet, have been composed into small framed pictures, mounted in a panel or separately. We like the little one of buttercups. Princeton Gift Shop.

Huka. Also called "Hookah." A water pipe for people who REALLY want a filter cigarette. No instructions, you're on your own. Gourmet.

A hunk of glass. Five-inch tall paperweight that looks like quartz, but just try and find the crystals. Found on a river-bottom near a glass factory. Silver Shop.

Slicer. You can slice your own ham, baloney or cheese with either the $14.88 or the $7.88 model. A matching meat-grinder is $35.88. Bob Lang, Route 206.

Bird of Paradise. Six feet tall, this plant is almost as wide, abundantly budded, and scheduled to bloom until Easter. Cunningham's Plant Market, Lambertville.

Stone-studded lamp. An octagonal hanging lamp has chunks of colored stones embedded in each of the eight panels, and an ornate wrought brass frame and chain. Four "candles" inside. Nassau Interiors.

What time is it? A dial world map will give you the simultaneous time in Denver, Darwin, Madagascar, Leningrad or anywhere else. Stones.

Gleaming white pottery angel bells one with pony tail dangle gently from a cord and "ring" as their feet clapper against their wide pottery skirts. Holly springs from each angel brow.

Bay. Country Mouse, drowning in bayberry, surfaces long enough to show you a candle slab, which looks like Lever House with two wicks on top. A square wax column with shadowy diamond design would illumine a modern room.

Six white tapers for $1 bear holly wreaths at the bottom of each . . . red wax spheres, the size of a small apple, show a wick for a stem (delightful in clusters) . . . those spill-over candles are dramatic if you stack them in two or threes, with the spillway going in different directions for each . . .

For a special candle, consider Country Mouse's two-foot white one on its antiqued white square base. An oval hole in the candle has been lined with sequins to provide a stage setting for choirboy and little trees. A hanging white candleabra will hold six candles in staggered tiers, with a wreath below.

To encircle your candle arrangement, Country Mouse has dozens of small wreaths, some fruit, some cones, some "holly." (Make your arrangement in one of the empty champagne, cocktail or brandy glasses at C Mouse.)

To Festoon Your Tree. At The Cummins Shop, our lazy family took leaped on the cardboard gingerbread men and cookies, real as anything, to hang on the tree and fool the kiddies. The tree itself might be one of Cummins' artificial table-size ones in green or white, possibly spiked with a crystal plastic icicle or snowflake, or a plain Florentine gold ball.

Know our favorite at Cummins? A one-foot wooden angel with blue dress and blonde hair. Twenty-five cents.

A stained glass cylinder transmits the light of the candle inside. One green metal candleabra takes eight slim candles, another white candleabra takes 12 chunky candles in cup-shaped holders.

Tiny lights, in green, white or mixed, lighted strings of white trees and little crystal coach-lamps would bring a glow to your tree.

University Store has minute all-gold snowflake lights at $5.50 a string, and 20 diamonds to glitter all in a row $4.50.

Wax In Glass. At Happy House, the new shop in the Shopping Center, candles come in frosted glass cylinders, with Santa or a New England church visible through a dust of golden snow. Spheres, snifters, cones and cylinders are covered with gold, emerald, sapphire and ruby sequins to refract the light of the candles inside.

Just for fun, there are peppermint twist candles with a red-capped baby angel and deer at the base, and snowball candles. This shop, by the way, has lots of Christmas favors: placecards, little bells and cones for table decorations.

Does Anyone Have a Sunken Tub?

The bathroom emerges as the Room-of-the-Year. We've never seen so many bathroom fancies, all designed to keep you steaming in that tub forever. The one thing we want we didn't find a sunken tub. A second-hand Roman would do.

Stone's Linen Shop. In a natural extension of the bath-towel department, this shop steps out of the tub and into the accessory line. A wide brass bracket retains a stack of guest-towels or wash cloths, ceramic jars in subdued matte finish hold powder, unguents and anything else. A gold wreath and profile medallion make them appropriate for the classic bath.

Wallpapers. "Alice in Wonderland" or Revolutionary War drummers (i.e., girl or boy) figure prominently on shower curtains for a child's own bathroom. Clothesbags match, for gym socks and scruffy dungarees.

Home Decor. Vanity stools with powder-puff acrilan seats, and Roman brass benches with pink corduroy cushions invite you to stay a little longer before the mirror.

Farkouh. Callaway's complete color collection of yarn-dyed towels includes black, brown, lilac and about two dozen other colors, none of which will ever fade.

Rorer's. Royal bathroom scales have a carrying handle and a magnified dial you can actually read. (The dial reads accurately, too you really did put on weight over Thanksgiving.) Scuff-proof mat protects the standing surface. $4.37.

Happy House. Ceramic ashtrays hang on the wall, and are convenient for a bathroom, where a flat surface for the standard ashtray may not be at hand.

Thorne, W. Windsor. Early American tissue-box, $1.98.

—and a Christmas velvet hair-bow.

Howe Nurseries' perches a bright red cardinal on a glistening snowy branch, and a partridge on a glittering pear tree. Both are candles.

We like Viking's idea of a long, narrow "Merry Christmas!" door panel for a modern front door and Nassau Interiors' idea of mounting a quartet of antique reproduction "santos" (Jesus and the Three Wise Men) against a plain wall.

Howe's matches are long, for the fireplace, in decorated felt boxes with a spray of "flowers." Cummins has gold-tipped two-inch matches, four or six boxes to a set, with velvet and gold covering.

Poinsettias For All. For Christmas upstairs and down, Stone's provides natural-color linen runners and cloths with big, bright poinsettias. Olive green placemats have a poinsettia border, paper mats and napkins have a poinsettia design and Vera's tea-towel has —guess what!—right in the middle.

At Farkouh, the party panel for the center of your plain cloth has bells, holly or Santa, $1 to $1.25. Leacock makes basketweave white mats encircled with holly wreath, four for $7.98, and clothes in linen for $8.50.

(After dinner, wear a terry apron from Farkouh's holiday collection.)

Home Decor even has a holly bath mat. It goes with the terry bath mitt, all done out in holly for a Christmas Eve tubbing.

Ready now to wrap it up? Princeton Stationers Discount Center has six spools of curling ribbon, metallic Christmas paper, and a box of half a dozen standard Christmas paper, all for half price. The shop also offers boxes of 25 Christmas cards, name printed free, for $1.25 to $3.10.

For Tables, Chairs, Queen Anne's tea-table with its one graceful leaf, might be your choice for Christmas. It's at Princeton Decorating on Palmer Square near a French smoking table no bigger than a puff, made of fruitwood with fine inlay work and slender legs.

Manning's wine table has a travertine top on its cherry base $59. Rug Mart sets down its glass on the white mica top of a nested table, or the Brandywine finish of a cloverleaf table, lamp height, with four small leaves.

Coffee goes on Ivy Manor's long cherry table with its length-wise drop leaves that open out to make a full 12 cups. A nest of four lamp-height tables comes from the Biggs cabinet shop to Ivy.

The Silver Shop takes a 75-year-old tawny mahogany top, slightly bowed at all four sides, and rests it on slim brass Queen Anne legs, $50. Want to win? Take home the minute 19th-century checker table with the bowl around the stem for extra checkers, or the backgammon table that folds to a 22-inch length and looks just like a sewing table.

Both Nassau Interiors and Manning's urge you on with card tables. Manning's Leg-o-Matic has "leather" top and antique fruitwood. Nassau Interiors' has a black "leather" top and walnut finish.

Table d' Hote. While you're at Nassau Interiors' boutique, look at the 14-inch round table made of blue-green Italian pottery and mounted on a black wrought-iron tripod base. $21.-50.

Elmwood Antiques reaches back to 1800 for a card-or-hall table with an intricate leaf construction which converts it from green felt whist table to hall console to square study table. ($575). A tea table has exquisitely shaded shell inlay, much too pretty to cover with a cloth. It's $375.

As useful in 1963 as in 1825, is Elmwood's oval green and gold papier mache tray table, from Gordon Small of Edinburg. Price is $325. For $130, you may have a tray straight from the butler's pantry of 1810.

Need a chair? Schwartz . . . a pair of regal Tomlinson upholstered chairs for dining a deux. Viking . . . a swivel desk chair with star base on casters, and adjustable tilt, a piano-

Don't Miss the Mistletoe, or "Buy Now!"

Christmas decorations are swept clean out of a shop before any other merchandise, so you'd better make time fast if you want to buy for home and tree. We'll help:

Christmas glassware. Cummins Shop has highballs and old-fashioned, frosted, with holly design. Flexible plastic holly coasters can hold them, if you wish.

Bayberry candles. Country Mouse must own a bayberry farm. You can buy one-inch stubbies, standard sie, imposing cylinders, cones, sachets — even bayberries themselves, we presume.

Christmas cactus. Cunningham's rosy red blooms will be coming out just at Christmas. The plant is about four feet wide — what a spectacular gift.

Della Robbia garlands. Howe's fruit garlands are always favorites. Look at the firethorn and mistletoe in round, white bowls, and the three-foot tree made of gold and tinsel, with pears and birds on the branches. A partridge in your pear tree . . .

Swedish candleabra. Viking has them from $1.25 with a $6.95 model mounted on a "Silent Night" music box.

Pine cone wreath. Flower Coop has the traditional wreath, and a flowing "S" for the table, all in warm brown natural pine cones. Howe makes pine cone wreaths, too.

One, great candle. Happy House has an 18-inch arrangement with red cylinder candle in an antiqued gold compote, the whole topped by a sprig of holly.

Christmas tree skirt. Farkouh's is white felt, warmed by holly and mistletoe.

Good, Christmas red. Stone's solid towels. Clayton's and Farkouh's solid red tablecloths, round, oblong or oval.

It's New To Us

stool spin and scooped-out back to cool you off after a hot conference. Nassau Interiors . . . Mediterranean chairs with deeply tufted silken backs and Provincial Italian frames. Rug Mart . . . Boston rockers.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE

Why, Just the Thing! This is the year you'll choose exactly the right house present, because the abundance and variety make a perfect choice easy. Our problem, of course, is choosing what to tell you to choose from.

Begin with the lacquered teak chest, camphor-wood lined, banded with brass, big enough for blankets, at Kung Ping. Ivy Manor's is a Lane Stowaway chest, 25 inches long, banded like a pirate's chest but dedicated peacefully to your sewing, your records, or your silverware. $24.95 to $39.95. Furniture Barn dumps the swing into a well-bucket with rope handle, one of many wooden buckets you can buy here.

Stone's puts everything into a collection of antiqued gold Florentine boxes and miniature chests of drawers. We like the one shaped like a trunk.

Stone's is alive with gold and crystal and Limoges this year. Pillboxes with Limoges tops are crusty with wrought gold and "jewels." (One has a one and one-half inch "amethyst" for a top.) Boudoir sets combine beveled crytal tops with wrought gold frames to make jewel boxes, trinket holders, a mirrored tray, tissue boxes, soap trays and a pretty bevy of boudoir fancies.

Nassau Interiors' catch-all is a big brass tub with lions' head handles. Elmwood's is an aristocratic mahogany wine-cooler, lined, with brass bindings and Queen Anne legs. It's about 175 years old, circa $450.

How about Art? Impressive three-feet-tall medieval figures stare out at the world from Nassau Interiors. Adroitly antiqued wood, they are, a brooding, robed man and a wimple-wound woman.

Two dimensional art is represented by pillow covers and hangings from Ilus Originals of Roosevelt, N.J., now at Home Furnishings, Witherspoon Street. There are wool hand-embroideries on burlap: daisies on brown, a violet and teal toy bird on natural, a yellow rooster on red. Best and biggest is a "Woman and Child" in primitive style, with far from primitive needlework. The collection also includes appliqued satin cushions in geometrics and the finest stitches you ever saw.

Home Furnishings also has occasional cushions in hot, bright Mediterranean colors, but some in suave Duponi silks, too. Fake fur is here, or do you prefer homespun?

Viking (open every night until 9 these days), has throw pillows, too, with Scandinavian form and color, one with long wool tassels on each corner.

Match and Tray. Glass ashtrays, in all shapes, have been painted by hand in a variety of luminous colors and patterns, probably Viking's favorite gift of the season. Stained glass medallions and animal outlines are fun to hang in a sunny window by a gently swaying thread. The wooden horses [illegible] Sweden would be at home [illegible] Dozens of sizes.

[illegible]ce Viking's contribution to the hearth. It's a yard-long, two-inch wide box of natural wood to hang on the wall. Lift its sliding cover and pluck a little colored hatchbox to light log or pipe. A scant, black Japanese design is silhouetted against the wood.

Country Mouse honors hearth and home with a broom of colored bristles set flat in a square of painted, Pennsylvania Dutch wood, with a thong-wrapped handle. Another broom is plainer. For the kitchen.

Bowden, the fireplace man, will make you a custom screen in 48 hours. That's as long as it takes us to light a fire.) For a cold hearth, there's an open-work black metal fan screen in scrool pattern, and a brass fan which rests on a small stand and looks rather like a very brassy peacock.

Happy House has a spreading pair of brass balances two feet tall, with eight-inch pans and a marble base. We think you'll like the single brass candlestick, mammoth size, with a wide, curving loop of a handle.

This new shop likes to hang its ashtrays. Ceramic ones from California can hang on a tree branch outdoors next summer, or from your playroom rafter this winter. One standing ashtray is 18 (EIGHTEEN) inches tall, like a slender strawberry barrel, with openings to tap your cigarette into.

WHERE'S THE WALL?

Under the Picture If a picture and a wall need each other, try Ivy Manor's framed reproductions (Constable, van Gogh, etc.) with almost-real paint technique ($29.95). Viking has fascinating barkcloth pictures from Central America, almost one-of-a-kind with variations depending on the native artist and the cloth texture. There's a pink cat, a girl with a crown, a group of three figures, and so on, each $5 with protective 8 x 11 inch frame. You'll be reminded of some pre-Columbian art.

For your golfer, Elmwood Antiques has a pair of 26 by 18 inch 18th century golfing prints framed with black and gold, and displaying a delightful dandy with golden epaulettes, red breeches — and golf club. $200 for the pair.

Another kind of sportsman will welcome a sporting or legal print, priced form $12.50 "The Death," took our fancy.

Princeton Decorating Shop contributes to the season a fine

ough-owned land on Hamilton Avenue It was agreed that the Borough would look into the feasibility of such a project, that Mr Mangone would investigate the cost of a bond against possible deterioration of the Borough tract, and that James C Bennett, Mr Mangone's lawyer, would consult with Borough attorney Gordon D Griffin and the engineer's office about the preparation of an agreement which might make use of the land available to Mr Mangone

● A statement by this fall's Democratic candidate for mayor Minot C Morgan Jr, that the scheduled auction of the Nassau Street School seemed to favor a large, non-profit educational institution" (ie Princeton University) as probably the sole bidder because of the confining stipulations of sale Mayor Patterson said that the University felt just the opposite to be the case, that the state had given its approval to the method of bidding and selling the property, and that there were expected to be a number of bidders present at the auction.

● An announcement that there would soon be two vacancies on the Borough police force caused by the retirement on next March 15 of Sgt Applegate a member of the force for 25 years, and the resignation effective on Sunday of Pfc Donald Forward. The date for examinations to fill the positions will be announced within a few weeks.

● A report that the repaving of Hodge Road from Elm Road to Library Place had been postponed until spring.

● A motion, approved after discussion, that Borough school taxes be levied henceforth on a calendar rather than on a yearly basis.

● An expression of thanks to Mrs Gordon Knox and those who helped her in arranging the recent exhibition of pictures of Princeton past which was on display in Borough Hall to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the town's incorporation

● An announcement by Councilman Carrick that last summer's survey of trees by the Shade Tree Committee now involved the posting of extensive data on each of Princeton's 3,000-plus shade trees on 3,000-plus filing cards As one member of the audience remarked somewhat acidly on his way out of the long meeting "What we need now is a Bird-Watching Committee to tabulate the kind, size, shape and color of each bird which nests in each shade tree Anybody want to be chairman?"

New Season Ahead

The sharp-honed wind
May cut like steel,
But how I like
That wintry feel!

The mercury dropped to the freezing point this week and then went a bit lower, as if to get in practice for the months ahead The accompanying wind made the time of year emphatic

The last week of fall is, however scheduled to be marked by temperatures a few degrees above normal Chance of rain or snow along about Friday night although not much of either A clear weekend is forecast

STUDENT BADLY HURT

In Fall from Library. James E. Cameron Jr., a Princeton University junior, was seriously injured Friday night when he fell from a third floor window in Firestone Library. He sustained several fractured cervical vertebrae in his six-story fall to the ground in a sunken area on the Nassau Street side of the library.

Heel impressions indicate he landed feet-first and then rolled. It is not known how the accident occurred since there was no one in the locked graduate study room with Cameron when he fell from the approximately 2-foot square window

Cameron was found about 10 30 p m after undergraduates studying on the ground floors heard him moaning. His condition is reported by Princeton Hospital, where he underwent an operation on Saturday morning, to be fair to satisfactory

WHITHER FRANKLIN?

Planning Board Listens. The Borough Board of Education does not want to put Guyot Avenue "through" because the street would slice off the present campus from new buildings which the college hopes to build in the next two years.

An audience of 100, gathered in Community Park School, heard these matters debated Monday night as the Township Planning Board and the Borough Board of Education's Walnut Lane school site had their long-awaited confrontation

Nothing was decided. The Planning Board will meet again in an adjourned meeting at a date to be decided on later this week, to pick up the same problems and look at them all over again.

It was a mild - mannered hearing, rather than the stormy one that had been expected, but there were undertones of annoyance and an almost palpable determination on the part of the Township Planning Board to remain serene.

Everyone spoke insistently and repeatedly of "cooperation" among the Township Planning Board, the Borough Board of Education and The Choir College

"I want to make it very clear," said Gerald Breese, Planning Board chairman, "that the Planning Board has made several efforts to confer with the Board of Education and the Choir College, and that we have had very rewarding cooperation."

But earlier Mr. Breese said, "The Planning Board was not consulted. I first saw the Borough's plans when they were shown to the PTA this fall."

And later, Mr. Breese said: "The Planning Board has proposed several possibilities on the Franklin Avenue question to the choir college but none has been accepted." He added that the board had not asked formally for acceptance.

Technically, the Borough Board of Education was not involved in the proceedings because it doesn't yet own any of the land — either the Westminster Choir College contribution of 12.9 acres, or the northernmost snippet now belonging to Richard Bradley and bordering on Guyot Avenue (or what would be Guyot if it went through.)

Therefore, Mr. Bradley, represented by William Miller; and Westminster Choir College, represented by Frank P. Reiche, made the subdivision presentations.

No one came to represent the Borough Board of Education, even as a spectator, but the board was certainly there in spirit. Mr. Miller is also board attorney, and it was he who told the Planning Board what the school board wants to do with the Bradley parcel. It was he who replied to the pointed questions about traffic raised by the Township neighbors who came to the hearing.

Guyot. Where the stub of Guyot now is, the school board wants a driveway which will enter the school property from Walnut Lane. On the other side, it wants a service driveway in from Ewing Street. The Board most definitely does not want a through street.

"Guyot is a 'through' street on the Township Master Plan," commented Hans K. Sander, Planning Board member.

Franklin. "The trustees of Westminster are absolutely adamant about closing Franklin," Lee Bristol Jr., president of the Choir College, declared. Trustees only agreed to sell Westminster land to the Borough on the condition that Franklin eventually be vacated — that is, eliminated as a street.

Seymour Montgomery asked Mr. Miller what the board of education would do if Borough Council refused to wipe Franklin off the map. Mr. Miller said the board had not even considered this as a serious possibility because the referendums authorizing the new school were passed by an overwhelming majority of Borough voters all of whom presumably were aware of the fact that a "yes" vote meant "vacate Franklin."

Township administrator Joseph R. Nini threw a firecracker into the proceedings when he asked Mr. Reiche whether Westminster trustees realized that the Township could condemn Franklin Avenue, even though it lies in the Borough, because is it a continuation of a Township thoroughfare. Mr. Reiche said he was not aware of this.

The next move on Franklin is apparently up to Borough Council. If it passes an ordinance closing — or vacating — Franklin Avenue, then the Township will have to decide what to do.

At Monday's hearing, the Planning Board reminded those present that all Township PTA's, the Township Traffic Safety Committee, 425 Township residents (via petition), and at least two others, James Warren and Raymond Mitchell (see "Mailbox"), have written urging the Planning Board to try to keep Franklin open.

Arthur Byers, a Westminster trustee and Township resident, told the hearing that he had made an informal traffic count which showed heavy traffic on Franklin, and he cited this as one reason why the Choir College wants the street closed.

"That heavy traffic is precisely the reason why we think Franklin ought to be left open," said William Beeners, 263 Walnut Lane.

Other points made at the hearing:

- The Board of Education does not have traffic studies of the area. The Township Planning Board has repeatedly tried to get Borough cooperation for origin-destination studies on Franklin without success, according to Mr. Breese.

The Borough position is that traffic studies can be made between now and September, 1965, when the new school opens. Mr. Breese told Mr. Miller he didn't agree with the board about postponing such studies.

- The Township might eventually be asked to cede this land to the Borough, as ● Providing sanitary sewer facilities for 1,000 children may tax the Township sewer system in a serious manner, according to Township Engineer Frank Quinby.

The problem of a "through" Guyot might be solved, said Mrs William Cherry, 24 Dempsey Avenue, by stretching a chain across the street during school hours so that children could cross to the playground in safety. The chain could then be removed after school.

"Maybe we could solve Nassau Street traffic that way," commented William Mender, 189 Snowden Lane.

VICTORY OVER POLIO?

To Repeat Vaccine Clinics. Did you forget to take your first Sabin oral vaccine last Sunday? If so, the three special clinic stations will be open again this Sunday from 12 noon to 4 p.m., and you'll have another chance to benefit from the program.

At the three Princeton clinics last Sunday, 7,138 received the no taste vaccine on a small sugar lump promptly and efficiently. An additional 1,200 received the vaccine at Princeton University, which held a special clinic for its students and staff at the same time as the town's clinics.

Governor Richard Hughes and seven of his children appeared at the station in Princeton Hospital to take the vaccine. Entire families came together, and there was also a number of nuns as religious to the plea of entire communities in the area responded to participation.

Last Sunday's attendance figures for the three clinics (all three locations will be operating again this Sunday) showed Princeton Hospital, 1,983; Chambers Street firehouse, 1,410; Harrison Street firehouse, 3,743. Those in charge of the program hope that this Sunday's "make-up" sessions will result in at least an equal number of residents turning out for their polio-protective sugar lump.

As Dr Benjamin K Silverman, general chairman of the program, points out: "If we are to stamp out the ominous threat of polio in Princeton for once and for all, anything less than 100% participation is inadequate. You owe it to yourself, your family and your neighbors to take this simple step to eradicate the dangers of the disease."

Medical personnel in charge of the campaign stress the fact that the vaccine should be taken by everyone over six months of age, regardless of whether or not they have taken Salk injections. The reason: "Permanent immunization is possible only with the Sabin oral vaccine."

BAILEY FINED $100

For Zoning Violations. Murray S Bailey, 213 Harrison Street, was found guilty by Magistrate Theodore T Tams Jr in Monday's Borough court session on two charges of violating zoning and building codes. He was fined $200 and $10 costs on each of the two charges.

Mr Bailey, who pleaded not guilty, was convicted of violating the codes in his 1961 conversion of a two-story, single-family dwelling unit at 36 Bank Street into two apartments prior to receiving permission to do so. Arthur T Brokaw, Borough engineer, was the complainant in the case.

In passing sentence on Mr Bailey, Judge Tams pointed out that the fine for each infraction could have been as high as a maximum of $100 a day since the date the conversion was made — or something in excess of $73,000 on each violation for the two-year period.

ACCIDENT REPORT

Three Minor Ones. The Stony Brook Bridge, a driving rain storm and a blowout figured in three accidents in the Township last week.

As she approached Stony Brook Bridge early Monday morning while driving on the Lawrenceville Road, Mrs Mary A Kidd, 25, of Trenton told Princeton Township police, a car, traveling in the opposite direction, crossed over the solid white line on the bridge, into her path. This forced her, Mrs. Kidd said, to slam on her brakes.

As a result, James J. Fitzmaurice 61, of Trenton, following behind Mrs. Kidd's car, skidded into the rear of her car, considerably damaging the front end of his. There were no injuries and no charges.

The evening before, while driving on Snowden Lane, Audrey M Haitch, 37, of Franklin Park, failed to make a curve near the intersection of Franklin Avenue. Her car skidded on the roadway, made slippery by a driving rain storm, jumped the curb, knocked down a "stop sign" and continued on into an open field.

Sgt. Anthony Nini issued a summons to Mrs. Haitch, who was uninjured, for driving too fast for the condition of the road. Her car was towed away.

Early last week, a blowout caused Russell Wilson, 60, of Trenton, to lose control of his car while driving on Lawrence-

Mr. Wilson was uninjured but his car hit a telephone pole guide wire and knocked down the "Hilltop Farm" mailbox in front of the residence of William T. White. His car further damaged about 15 feet of Mr. White's fence, lawn and hedge. The week before another car out of control leveled some 30 feet of fence in front of the White property.

BROKAW RESIGNS

As Engineer. At his press conference on Tuesday morning, Mayor Henry S Patterson announced that Arthur T Brokaw, Borough engineer for the past five years, had submitted his resignation effective January 1, to mayor and council Mr Brokaw gave as reasons for his resignation a desire for "opportunities for professional advancement and a broader range of activities" and the "increasing financial requirements of a growing family."

Mr. Brokaw stated that he will continue to live in Princeton and, soon after January 1, will become active as a consultant "in the fields of planning, civil engineering, sanitary engineering and related subjects."

Mr. Brokaw recommended as his successor Thomas J. Cawley, the Borough's present assistant engineer. Mayor Patterson, in announcing Mr. Brokaw's resignation, said that fullest consideration would be given by mayor and council to Mr. Brokaw's recommendation

At the conference, Mayor Patterson also announced that he would ask council for confirmation for the reappointment of three borough officials to posts which they now hold Their present terms of office expire at the end of the year.

They are Gordon D. Griffin, Borough attorney, Kester R Pierson, assistant Borough attorney, and Theodore T Tams Jr., Borough magistrate since 1957.

PRESENTS FOR SANTA

Women's Club Names Donors. For the 14th year in a row, Henry Schultz is busy playing Santa Claus by telephone for hundreds of Princeton area children. He can be reached at 924-3883 from 1 to 5 and 6 to 8 every day of the week through Christmas Eve.

Seventy-eight years old and blind, Mr. Schultz has done more to nurture the spirit of Christmas among Princeton children than any other single individual. As a way of expressing the town's gratitude for the pleasure he brings to youngsters, the Woman's Club of Princeton annually receives donations from Princeton merchants to make Christmas a merry one for Mr. Schultz, too.

By Monday contributions had been received from. Elise Goupil, Skirm's Smoke Shop, Princeton Recreation Center, Bellows, Helen Van Cleve, The English Shop, Princeton Shopping Center Merchants Association, Nassau Interiors, The Country Mouse, Rosemarie De Stefano, Houghton Real Estate, Esther's Harper Method, Nassau Savings and Loan, Cox's Store, Mayme Mead, Dorothy S. Schmidt, Management Planning, House of Mario, Morris Maple and Gene Seal Flowers.

CHILDREN INVITED

To University Lab. The excitements and enticements of a real university physics laboratory will be offered as a Christmas present to Princeton youngsters by the University and the Princeton Junior Museum.

Dr Allen Shenstone of the physics department will perform experiments in electricity and magnetism in Palmer Physical Laboratory on Monday, December 30, at 2:30, and afterward, boys and girls who attend will have a chance to experiment on their own with real laboratory equipment.

This "Christmas Lecture," hopefully an annual affair, has been modeled by the Junior Museum after a similar series begun by Michael Faraday for children in 1850 in London's Royal Institution.

Dr. Shenstone will present for his young audience the experiments performed by Joseph Henry, one of America's great 19th century experimental physicists. Reproductions of Henry's original instruments, now in Palmer Laboratory, will be used for the demonstrations.

Prof Henry did his experimental work more than a century ago when he was a professor of natural philosophy at Princeton and the work he did contributed in a major way to the science of electromagnetics

After Dr Shenstone's demonstration, 25 boys and girls between 10 and 14 years of age will have a "lab session" and another group will have a guided tour to see Prof Henry's original instruments Tickets for the lab session will be available in the Junior Museum, third floor of Borough Hall, on a first-come-first-served basis, starting this Saturday.

There is no admission fee. All Junior Museum programs are open to all children in the community without charge Scheduled to begin in March, the course will include 52 weeks of training, with one-third of the time devoted to pre-clinical instruction and two-thirds to supervised clinical experience. It is intended to prepare the student for state licensing examinations.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 45 with a high school diploma or its equivalent to qualify for the course. A personal interview, entrance examination and physical examination are required. Those wishing further information should contact the hospital's director of nursing education at WA 1-7700.

JUVENILES APPREHENDED

In Blair Hall. Two 15-year-old juveniles from New Brunswick are being held in Mercer County Youth House, following their apprehension Saturday in Blair Hall by Princeton University proctors. They are presently awaiting further action by juvenile authorities.

Borough police said that one of the youths was carrying an illegal switch-blade knife and a loaded starter's pistol. The other was carrying a loaded 22-caliber French automatic pistol.

According to Chief Peter J McCrohan, the pair was caught before they had time to enter any of the rooms. The Chief added that the University is the victim of a rash of dormitory thefts which has broken out in recent weeks.

TRUSTEE ELECTED

By "Residents." Sherman Bates has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Residents of Princeton, succeeding his late wife, Pearl Bates, who died last February.

The "Residents," founded two years ago, have issued an invitation (see ad, page 49) to other residents of Princeton to join them in keeping a watchful eye on the community. The group is interested in starting a newsletter to publicize its activities and to keep subscribers niformed about planning and zoning, particularly in the Borough.

UNITED FUND AT 66%

Fund officials ask that any resident, area employee or businessman who has not yet been called on or made a contribution to mail in his donation to the fund office at 4 Green Street, Princeton. Or, a phone call to campaign headquarters, WA 4-5662, will summon a volunteer to pick up any contributions.

The latest report from the campaign shows the following divisional totals:

INDIAN STUDENTS HERE

On Peace March. Two Indian students, followers of Ghandi, who have "marched" from New Delhi to Moscow to London and to New York, will reach Princeton this Thursday on a peace journey which will conclude when they arrive in Washington.

They will speak at 7:30 in the conference room in Wilcox Hall on College Road, and the public is invited to attend. The students, who have covered 7,000 miles and 12 countries in 18 months, originally intended to meet with President Kennedy. They were about to embark from Liverpool when they learned of his assassination and rather than change their plans, they decided to take their message to President Johnson.

ACCELERATOR DEDICATED At Forrestal Ceremony. The Princeton - Pennsylvania $12 million accelerator was dedicated Saturday at Princeton's James Forrestal Research Center.

Presidents Robert F. Goheen of Princeton and Gaylord Harnwell of Pennsylvania participated in the ceremony along with Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. The Commission financed the project, which will be used to explore the nucleus of the atom.

Housed in a circular building at the research center, the accelerator can speed up the flow of protons or hydrogen nuclei to 98 percent of the speed of light. The heart of the device is a doughnut - shaped electromagnet 80 feet in diameter which guides the accelerated protons in a circle.

When traveling at the rate of 180,000 miles per second, the protons are directed against a small metal target thus producing the atomic particle known as a meson. Prof. Milton G. White is director of the accelerator. He and Prof. Henry DeWolf Smyth, chairman of the University's Research Board, also took part in the dedication ceremonies.

BOROUGH FINES 12 Four for Speeding. Twelve Princeton area residents were fined Monday by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr., among them, four for speeding and two for racing.

Mrs. Jeanette Bunderson, 26, 226-B Halsey Street, was fined $18 for speeding after being detected by radar. When she resisted arrest, Mrs. Bunderson was charged with failing to obey an officer's directions and fined $55. In addition, Magistrate Tams ordered that a letter be sent to the Motor Vehicle Department, recommending that Mrs. Bunderson's driving privileges in New Jersey be revoked 120 days.

Fines of $16 for speeding were levied against Miss Henriott Abenmoha, 26, 14 Murray Place, and John L. Fryling, 31, 9 Walnut Street, Hopewell. Miss Betty R. Preston, 41, 105 Mercer Street, was fined $20. All except Mr. Fryling pleaded guilty.

Two area men — Ronald A. Straw, 25, Princeton Pike, and Gene Jackson, 23, Monmouth Junction, were each fined $30 for racing on Nassau Street. The license of each was revoked 15 days.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Schmidt, 57, 92 Linden Lane, and Frank H. Duncan, 38, Carter Road, paid $12 fines for respective stop sign and improper passing violations. Others include, Kwenshen Chang, 34, 31 Chestnut Street, $15, careless driving, and Edwin Gatchell, 39, 61 Broadripple Drive, $10, abandoning disabled car in the middle of a highway.

Robert D. Dripps, 21, 63 Blair Hall, a Princeton University student, was fined $15 as a disorderly person. He was charged with tampering with the police fire alarm patrol box on the corner of Nassau and Witherspoon early in the morning of November 17. Mr. Dripps, who allegedly used the phone to call the police to tell them he was having a good time, pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Gertrude Jenkins was ordered to pay $10 court costs when she refused to press charges she had made earlier against her husband, Gilbert Jenkins Jr., 118 Leigh Avenue. Mrs. Jenkins reportedly had complained of annoying telephone calls made by her husband.

On Friday, December 20, the club will tram Christmas trees and serve hot chocolate and home-made cookies to the guests at Merwick Nursing Home. The club also has made arrangements for a choral group from Nassau Street School to sing Christmas songs.

group of wastebaskets, much too lovely for old report cards. One is Japanese grass-paper in silk. Another has a quilted chintz cover. Another, made rectangularly like a Japanese house, has wooden strips along its green-brown sides.

Christmas Leaves. Why not give your neighbor a plant? Then you can ask her for a cutting. Gene Seal starts at 75 cents and goes to $65, suggesting first the Finger Aralia, a delicate tropical tree and continuing on to the Tropical Weeping Fig (that's for us) and the Bird's Nest Fern. Coffee trees and Dragon trees can be trained as they lose their lower leaves, so we are told.

Gene Seal likes to see a good plant in a good planter, and there are certainly plenty here. Black buckets with brass bands for really big plants, and Italian containers in low, flat style done in deep brown matte finish, or a glazed blue.

For arrangers, there are authentic copies of Japanese antiques, done in quiet earth colors and rich textures. Many, like the small round jar-shape are for miniature dried arrangements.

At Cunningham's flower market near Lambertville, there is a six foot redwood planter with a plastic liner, big enough for four or five plants, $63. A six pot stand in brass is $14.95.

How Much Does Ivy Weigh? One of the handsomest plant

. . . And on Dec. 26?

"We have some nice boutique items," said the lady at Wallpapers, and indeed they have. "But our busy time will come after Christmas."

Her remark started us thinking about all the quiet people you never hear about at Christmas—the automobile dealer, the stock broker, the travel agent, the paperhanger. These are the ones who sit out the holiday season with their feet up on an egg-nog, watching the Nassau Street frenzy from a comfortable chair.

Then, on December 26, they calmly arise from that easy chair, open the front door and rake in all the Christmas checks.

Who wants to own a store?

ers we've seen is heavy as lead, which indeed it is. The sides are straight and there is a beading design around the edge. Handles have been fired in on two sides. $131.50, at Howe's so be sure you plant something pretty spectacular inside. You can have a cast stone planter, pot-shape, for $42.

At Pink House, they're showing Bay Ridge's three foot strawberry jar in white ($8.75), a double funnel planter in white or white with blue dripped over it, and a half-funnel. All right, a cone.

Next summer, you can put in the garden next to your planter, Kung Ping's little stone lantern, candle-size.

On the small side, we find Cummins' black Basalt Wedgwood ashtray (don't you dare grind out your cigarette on my Wedgwood!), trinket box and small vase, priced within your reach, but authentically Wedgwood, for the collector.

A fascinating trivet has been made for Cummins out of ground shells and mother-of-pearl, smoothed over with a clear plastic surface. It's eight inches square, and it matches a group of coasters which are available in various shell shades: fawny brown, clear pearl and the like.

That whale on Cummins' enamel on glass ashtray, is spouting — confetti! Happy New Year!

For Bibliophiles. Getting back to the collectors, if they like Wedgwood, they may like first editions. Elmwood has, among others, Trollope's "Last Chronicle of Barset" in two volumes for $35, and Thackeray' "The Virginians," $25 for two, with steel engravings by the author himself.

Williamsburg has been carefully reproduced in Bowden's door knockers. The great big key, the horse, the lion. Eagles and roosters in various meteorological poses make nice weathervanes, or did you know?

Wallpapers has eagle door knockers, too, and a nice brass shell one which we like. A black cast-iron knocker topped with cherubs, gives you something to look at while he's coming to the door.

Queenstown Craft continues its local tradition by offering a six-inch blue green vase, made in the area, and decorated with a fabul leaf design. It's round, but open-throated. Queenstown's apple tray, in sober pine, matches a painted apple tray, sturdy as a Pippin, with blue and gold fruit design. Put it on a rack for a tray-table.

But if they're never home . . . ? then try a plug-in cigarlight from Tiger Auto, ready for use as soon as it plugs into the cigarette lighter. A magnetic handle allows you two free hands while you change your tire. An emergency red light (visible half a mile) can be snapped on top and placed on top of the car by a magnetic cap.

But who knows? Maybe the best present you give will be Tiger's 98-cent "Ready Spare," a bomb-style gadget which, with a squeeze or two, repairs your tire enough to get you to a garage.

DESK SPACE

Home Work. To dress up a desk (perhaps Rug Mart's desk that looks like a closed spinet piano?) we invite you to Viking where there is a collection of slate and wood pieces so handsome you'll forget to do your work.

A slate-faced clock ($50) with an off-center dial is set off-center, into an oblong base. Matching, a letterbox with slate sides and wooden slats, a cube paperweight, a cigarette holder and a pencil container, all combining slate with such woods as zebra, rosewood and walnut. Buy 'em all, we say.

Stone's arranges on your desk tortoise shell lighter, matchbox and picture frame. Nassau Interiors holds everything together with slab bookends etched with white cuneiform that probably say "Don't forget to empty wastebaskets." This shop's letter and pencil file is black and gold, with a stamp collecting design.

Princeton Stationers Discount Center has letter-opener and long-bladed scissors with chased gold handles, in stitched leather sheath for 98 cents. (Looks like more.) A big, 20-inch square desk calendar gives a bird's eye view of the month, with appropriate sketch at the top of each of the 12. The musician in your family will carry the zippered music case.

LET ME SEE . . .

Lamps, Upstairs and Down. Decoupage lamps at Princeton Decorating are quite fascinating to look at: the paper work is done on the inside and becomes luminous when you turn on the light. A large one (almost two feet) is decorated with all kinds of mushrooms. Another, for the boudoir, is a panel of French silk flowers, all different in color and types.

Pink House, on Route 69, caters to the man's study with a bird series: prairie chickens, woodcock, mountain quail, $5.50 each. Formal Grecian lamps in black with gold figures illumine another kind of room. These are $6. Tall Wedgwood blue lamps have white silk shades — bases, $5.50, shades $2.40.

Your favorite blue onion pattern appears on Furniture Barn's ceramic apothecary lamp. A tea-caddy shape, smaller, is appealing, too.

Elmwood's table lamp is a turned mahogany candlestick from 1800, three feet tall, $125 with shade. The floor lamp was a twist-style candlestand of the early 1800's. It's $195, with shade.

The Silver Shop shows an lamp of dull brass, once used in a formal parlor, without a doubt. It has a four-inch marble base, and it has been electrified.

For modern rooms, Viking has that $19.95 Lampette you've seen in magazines: a wonderful for desk work or reading. Ivy Manor suggests walnut and brass in a modern pole lamp with three linen-shaded bullets $24.95. Rug Mart has a walnut and brass standing lamp with a circle of slate for a cigarette shelf.

On the table, you'll find Ivy's slim cone of Italian alabaster, square based, or Rug Mart's brass and walnut lamp with its wood-decorated linen shade.

Dark woods, deeply scarred and antiqued, form the bases for two lamps at Nassau Interiors, one with clarett print shade, the other shaded by dull gold.

We think you'll add to your lighting scheme the andiron-sized candlesticks at Princeton Gift, or 16-inch silver sticks with cut glass drops around the cup.

La Vake is set with silver candlesticks, too, in singles, pairs or trimmverates.

Under 100

Each Christmas Gallery 100 at 100 Nassau, holds a show called "Under 100." For this exhibit of things to buy that cost under $100, the Gallery departs somewhat from its usual policies and offers such decorative pieces as jewelry, along with the prints and the ceramics.

You will find the current "Under 100" show covered this week in "Art in Princeton" on page 36. The exhibit was arranged too late for inclusion in "It's New to Us."

YOU'RE INVITED

How Entertaining! Gourmet invites you for a hot-dog cooked over the Safari Grill which burns newspapers, no less. The financial section of the New York "Times" will cook your steak all by itself.

You may also cook in Gourmet's flameproof casseroles, the ones with white striated sides and black tops. You can even freeze and reheat in the same dish. Or, do your reheating with a rechaud under the casserole. The controlled alcohol burner and Swiss brass tray are $8.95.

At Rorer's in Hopewell, the Sunbeam electric flying pan is the eggs-and-steak utensil. A two-slice toaster by Sunbeam breaks the morning chill, too.

Bob Lang's, on Route 206, can show you automatic percolators from Presto, GE, Sunbeam and West Bend, starting at $9.88. Why not give a hostess that 75-cup West Bend for $32.95? She'll love you forever.

Bird On The Head. Among the rotisseries, we found GE's rotisserie-oven for $49.95 and Sunbeam's "Carousel", in which you stand the chicken on its head — $26.95. For a big family, how about the four-slice toaster from Toastmaster" $26.95.

Presto comes along with a Rock-n-Mix portable mixer with an oblong "bowl" that looks like a cradle. Bob Lang has standard mixers, too, starting at $14.88. Blenders start at $14.88 and can openers from $9.88. That's the electric can-opener, you know.

For buffets, Bob Lang has Presto's two-handled frying pan, and the Westinghouse $29.95 model with broiler lid that lets you cook deep things like a whole chicken, presumably.

Rorer opens cans automatically, too, courtesy of GE and the Sunbeam Vista people. Lucar, in the West Windsor Shopping Center, mixes with the Dainty Maid mixer, and serves from the D.M. grill and waffler. This hardware store likes the Teflon saucepan, cookie tin and frying pan in which nothing ever sticks.

Soupcon . . . The cook of the house will welcome Gourmet's Portuguese copper measuring cups (with American measurements), long and thin and hanging from a brass bar.

Spice racks come from the far and fragrant corners of the earth — namely Thorne's in West Windsor (racks with 8, 12 and 21 spices); The Furniture Barn (tile-fronted boxes in antique pine finish, or a six-drawer apothecary chest with ducks and pheasants in tile); Viking (cork-topped, dumpbell shaped, painted wooden, containers grasped by a walnut rack — choose black, red or teak.

A one-quart sauce-maker from Urken's ($3.50) has the measurements inside, so you can't go wrong. A two-quart size teakettle will brew just enough for a cold afternoon.

Cutting boards from Queensbrown Craft are all different from each other painted on one side, plain on the other. While you're here, look at the little china grater with Beatrix Potter-style vegetables and rabbits in color. At The Country House, Pennsylvana Dutch is the cutting-board motif — round for you, or oblong?

The Ends Of Teak. Dansk sends to Gourmet the newest in the Dansk collection: a cutting board of teak-ends mosaic, about five inches round, gently concave on one side to keep the juices in. A knife slips inside and makes the handle $7.95.

Gourmet serves with a 16-inch reproduction of a Georgian dressing spoon. Fruit meets its match in a Sheffield fruit knife, stainless, light to handle. Gerber knives, of tool steel, come in sets from $22.50.

University Store also collects Gerber, like the "Big Snick," more than a foot long with a nick in the tip so that your carver can serve more easily. Little Snick, French Snick and Snickersnee, all go down the size ladder. G.E.'s electric carving knife works like a saw. Even mother can carve with this one — $23.95.

Spell It First. Fruktknivar, the Swedish fruit-knife at Princeton Gift, is the molded repousse style. There are also the Inoceaskular Coffee spoons. Four for $3.95.

For the collector, Silver Shop has a horn-handled carving set with cut-glass dumbbell to rest the knife on, and a pair of ample, Victorian vegetable dishes with handles that come off so you can use the tops as dishes.

From Switzerland, Happy House imports ceramic or brass fondue dishes, complete with calories. From Hong Kong, Kung Ping imports a five-piece set of white porcelain for only $4.

Viking has an awesome new salad bowl from Mexico, like a big half-circle, made of thick wood completely rounded — no "edges" anywhere. Its so masculine and massive that even a man will eat salad from it. Smaller bowls, individual bowls and servers match.

Urken's salad bowl set, rosewood, has a large bowl and four individuals, each one on a metal base.

"I'm Running a Little Short of Cash"

Instead of saying "charge it," investigate these inexpensive gifts:

$3. Boudoir lamp shaped like a round vase, with pink roses or violets on white. Nice in a pair, if you have $6. Pink House.

$2.98. Mailbox, long and rectangular with hooks underneath for the paper. A special one is large enough to take the paper inside. (Sunday "Times"?) Some have brass crests, styles are various. Urken's.

$3.98. Dial meat thermometer will cook your Christmas goose, and keep your New Year's roast rare. Rorer's, in Hopewell.

$4. Four cocktail glasses and pitcher, all on a Libbey serving tray which is alcohol-resistant. Lucar, Princeton Junction.

$2. Rosebud satin dress hangers, two in a set, impregnated with sachet and delectably pink or blue. Clayton's.

$1.25. English horse brasses, each one different, designed for a tack room, they would make staunch little wall plaques for den or boy's room. Wallpapers.

$2.95. Shihui boxes (up to $4.95) from Japan are for cigarettes, recipes, needle-and-thread or treasures. Covered with subtly patterned fabrics, lined, in squares, long oblongs or just oblongs. Viking.

$9. Two-foot metal tray, orange, deep red, yellow, or avocado on a wooden base. Can be a tray or a table, solid color means it "goes with everything." Cummins.

$1. Two boxes of stationery for the price of one Notepaper, 100. Princeton Stationery and Discount Center.

A Very Full Cupboard. Thorne's in West Windsor has such a variety of accessories for entertaining that we can only give you a random sample, so to speak. A celery dish has ceramic radishes, carrots, celery and onions to influence your appetite. A gold rimmed cake set, with three-tiered server, cakeplate and six individuals, will make you hunt for your best recipe. Embossed white china, with grape design for a border, has been fashioned into a butler dish, napkin holder, salt-pepper and cream-sugar.

You may also want to give the cannister set (plus the instant coffee jar) in white with an old-fashioned tracing of blue wreaths. A teapot matches.

Cummins has more brushed steel steak sizzlers than ever before. The metal nests in a walnut tray, from $7.95. LaVake, of course, wraps everything in silver, sterling or plate: trays, bowls, salt-pepper, cream-sugar. For a special after-dinner coffee, pour from the sterling pot with its blackberry finial. Cream and sugar to match.

Ivy Manor wheels it in on a hostess cart of cherry, maple or walnut, and of course everybody has thermo trays of one make or another. Viking's Hotray is domed to accommodate a big ham. Bob Lang's Thermo-Tray has a gold fleur de lis on its white surface. Both Gourmet and Viking have the new Hotray coffeepot with filter.

And when it's all ready, sound Kung Ping's reverberating brass drum dinner-gong, with the good-luck character or its face. Comes in small ($9.95—for breakfast?) and large ($15—for Christmas dinner).

FROM THE LOOM

By Way of Flax. Linen might come from Farkouh, where you can get a Quaker Lace cloth, 72 by 90, $4.98 and up. But Farkouh is proudest of the round of oval cloths, made to your table size, if you wish, but all standard sizes in stock.

Solid color linen cloths from 54 by 72 and on up to 102 inches, come in a paint-box of colors — black pearl, crocus, regimental red, deep bronze, raspberry, citron, lemon peel — There are linen mat sets in pumpkin, copen, pink, with plain or initialed napkins, the initials a long-legged three inches in height.

Mr. Farkouh asks us to remind you that he has foam rubber for table pads, $3.75 a yard, 50 inches wide, and — a black lace tablecloth!

House & Garden colors brighten the dining-room at Clayton's. Twenty colors here, with scalloped edges on the matching napkins. Round or oval cloths, to suit. A vinyl-coated fabric table-cloth in solid color would be useful for a family of spilly children.

On your informal table, Clayton's spreads a bandanna print cloth, and Farkouh lays the runner of Persian print in those deep, jewel-like tones. (Persian print comes in pillow covers, place-mats, a 72 by 108 cloth or wall-hanging, and even a shopping bag. All except the big one, are under $10.)

Swiss and Snow. Swiss scenes enliven some new mats at Claytons. Eat off the Matterhorn next Tuesday, with Lucerne on Wednesday. Shag makes natural Irish linen homespun mats with blue borders, and Bucilla says its "Wonder-looper" mats are "absolutely indestructible." Want to make the challenge?

Both Farkouh and Clayton have calendar tea towels (for 1964, silly!) and Farkouh has one that's a map of England, paired with a night view of Big Ben, $1 each. Stone's tea towel lives up to its name by displaying tea cannisters and sailing ships, loaded to the gunwales with tea, we presume. Country Mouse has great big towels, bigger than tea, with Early American prints on natural linen.

Candlelight Is Romantic . . . and Cheaper

Christmas brings out the candlelight in us all. Here are some decorative candlesticks you can use now, and even into the summer, in some cases. Got a match?

Gourmet. Dansk's hurricane lamp is several feet tall and looks rather like a lighthouse, with its hurricane glass 'way up there. The candle is a slender Christmas one. $14.95 pair.

Kung Ping. Expandable wooden candle-sticks pull out like a carpenter's rule, and may be set at an angle. We like the small black metal Japanese holder for $1, shaped like an old incense burner.

Princeton Gift. The tiniest crystal snowflake makes a flat holder for just one candle. $1 each.

Furniture Barn. Brass wall lanterns can be used as sconces. They burn kerosene and have a broad backstop of solid brass; 15 inches tall, $9.95 each.

Bowden's Fireplace. "So to Bed," an English pewter candlestick, six inches high, with snuffer. Use it with your electric blanket.

Happy House. English brass hurricane lamps, square based, with strong, muscular stems and tall, tulip-shaped glass hurricanes. Regal and commanding in scale.

Elmwood. Two twists of brass twine together in a tall pair of circa-1800 candlesticks which could go in a circa-1963 home. $40.

Viking. Teak or colored wooden sticks, slim and pear-shaped, or a floor-standing candlabra of wood, cane and wrought iron.

Just for fun — Happy House puts paper Christmas coasters and napkins into a bun basket, and suggests that you have monograms printed on coasters and napkins — $2.95 for the bundle, $4.50 monogrammed.

Urken's baskets could hold a cornucopia of fruit for the holiday, a long loaf of garlic bread, or a flower arrangement.

WE'RE FOR REPOSE

In Bed or Bath. You'll find everywhere this Christmas the inexpensive "insulaire" style of blanket: a cotton blanket ingeniously woven to keep you warm in winter, if you put a light cover on top of it, and just warm enough in summer air-conditioning. University Store, Farkouth, Stone and Home Decor all have this warm, light-weight blanket. Priced around $9-$12.

Stone's hasn't abandoned the good old wool blanket, however; Merino wool from England makes the prime blanket in this linen shop, with Three Weavers' handwoven throw for just a brief nap.

At Home Decor, St. Mary's and Fielderest warm the toes. If you have a relative who likes to watch TV in a drafty house, why not consider the Cressian throw? Light in weight, warm without half trying, it's a perfect present for someone older.

The Knitting Shop on Tulane Street has mohair throws knit in pastels, with pinks and blue, or deep olive and brown. Some people buy these and make them into skirts.

A Puff to Warm. Farkouh's Ballerina dacron comforter would be delicious on a young girl's bed, and the stage-coach gang would be just the thing for brother. A quilted cotton bedspread, in early American sampler design, could serve as a light quilt. Look at the Kentucky Derby quilt for a boy!

Some of Home Decor's comforters are reversible — solid and print. A homespun Pennsylvania Dutch one is warm just to look at. The gift-of-the-house at Home Decor is the $59.98 set from Switzerland consisting of one sheet and two pillowcases in finest percale. (But there's a $125 bedspread, too: outline quilted, in ivory.)

Viking surprised everybody by offering a bedspread this Christmas. It's a satin-finish cotton made entirely of five-inch diamonds in olive, powder, turquoise, raspberry. $119.

Stone's comforters for children have rag dolls on the outside, so you can cuddle your doll and keep warm at the same time. A more sophisti-

36 University Place

Music Shop — 2nd floor

1963 — The Year of The Boutique Bonanza

Boutique" is the French word for "shop." It can also mean "tools," or "implements," and this dougle meaning gives it real meaning this year, when the boutique idea has really caught on in Princeton.

When a Princetnn shop-owner talks about his "boutique," he means the little shop-within-a-shop which he has set up, probably just for Christmas, so that his customers can choose from a variety of things he may not ordinarily have in stock.

Stone's, Viking, Nassau Interiors, Thorne's West Windsor, Gallery 100, Wallpapers and, as we've mentioned in previous columns, Bellows and Betty Wright, all have boutiques these days.

This means that you can go to Stone's, a linen shop, and from a charming little table select a brass ruler with a cigarette lighter in one end ($4.50 in a green felt case; or to Wallpapers, whose name speaks for itself, and buy a wicker tissue box ($5) which holds three handsome guest towels, one a most unusual tapestry pattern with ball fringe, and two in solids to complement the tpestry.

Thorne's West Windsor, which is a pharmacy, has almost everything you can imagine for entertaining, dining, cooking, or relaxing (including, presumably, tranquilizers on prescription).

Nassau Interiors has set up a kind of club-room boutique in the front of the shop. Decorated Mediterranean style, the boutique is equipped in a cosmopolitan manner with wall plaques of Elizabethan figures, antiqued with gold and executed with muted color; a gold and black Chinese wastebasket, and a next of modern ceramic ashtrays.

Viking disperses his boutique items, and puts Bennington Pottery's ceramic hanks, (the hippo, the owl and the elephant), on a low coffee table. The four Brazilian rosewood soldiers (including, perish the day, a Samurai and a Prussian), line up on a narrow dining table.

Gallery 100's boutique (see "Art in Princeton") brings jewelry into the photo-and-art store.

It's New To Us

cated comforter is deep olive and rust plaid.

What's In the Closet? Dazzling quilted white, planted with pink rosea: that's the color scheme for Stone's garment bags, hatboxes and closet boxes. Clayton's lines your drawer with chintz or taffeta, made with a sachet in the center, $2.50.

Your fur coat can hang from Clayton's heavy padded blue velvet hanger, and relax between wearings in the special black and gold moire bag, in either jacket or full length. Fur coats need to breathe, and plastic bags aren't a good idea. The stole hanger, in case you're just working up to a coat, is shocking pink velvet.

Happy House brings, for the man's bedroom, a leather tie caddy with four places for stays, a hanger for ties, and a design that allows the caddy to be folded to visor size.

And Stone brings the days' first note of welcome on a breakfast tray that's ivory with poppies, or blue onion on ivory. Others, too, but we didn't see them.

Hot-Headed? All the stores seem to have hair-dryers; University Store, Urken's, Rorer's, Lucar, Bob Lang, priced from $9.88 to $29.95. Ronson's electric shoe-polisher gleams away at University Store and Bob Lang — four different brushes, each magnetically attached so you never polish your hands instead of your shoes.

Rorer has, for $3.86, a manual polisher in a pleasing natural wood box, with polish and brushes, shoe-rest and large storage space.

Bought an electric toothbrush yet? Bob Lang suggests you invest $14.95 in G.E.'s This store has electric shavers by Sunbeam, Lady Ronson and Lady Remington, priced from $9.88 for the Lady Ronson, up to $38.95 for the Lady Remington Lektronic. The man's Ronson CFL 300 is $31.50.

As we said elsewhere, you could drown in this year's bathroom accessories. We happen to like Stone's four-inch toothbrush for travel, in its green velvet case rick-racked with gold. Wow!

Wicker is top man at Stone's, what with wicker stools, wicker tissue baskets, wicker towel baskets, all touched with Midas himself, on pink, black white, or even gold on gold, if you can stand it. Some baskets have frail little flowers in blue, for example, or velvet ribbon insertion. We saw an all-white basket set with a Christmas-red velvet ribbon running through. You could change it for spring, and so on.

A flowered china plate becomes a vanity tray when you put on it two flacons and a squat powder jar. White bone china perfume jars are no bigger than a drop. Buy them by the cluster.

Wallpapers and Stone both have 12-inch stands for hand towels, with two-inch brass hands which firmly grasp the towel you insert into their clasp. Wallpapers has them in both dark pewter and in brass.

Pewter, with Highlights. The interesting dark pewter appears again in Wallpapers' old-fashioned glass holder and soap dish, most appropriate for a Victorian bathroom, all full of marble. Shiny chrome rings and bars will satisfy the moderns. Wallpapers has them, too.

Thorne's in West Windsor has a white plastic vanity caddy for nailpolish, lipstick, and such. Complementary, but not matching, is a tissue holder, waste basket, tumbler and hamper in roses on a pale background.

Baskets appear again at Home Decor, festooned with color and flowers and gold paint. You can hang your towels from the yard-tall brass or chrome stand, or stack the guest towels on the glass shelf below the attached mirror.

Fieldcrest sends to Home Decor — or will, when you order — shaggy rugs, striped velvet shower curtains, towels or clipped cotton rugs in any of 20 colors, like "Spanish straw," "Verdian green" and even — get this — white.

HEART FUND DRIVE SET

Mrs. Bennett Is Chairman. Mrs. Clifton C. Bennett, 67 Woodland Drive, will serve as chairman of Princeton's 1964 Heart Fund Drive, Dr. Aaron J. Heisen, president of the Mercer County Heart Association, has announced. Proceeds of the drive, which will be conducted here throughout February, will be used to help combat the wide range of heart and blood vessel disorders now responsible for over one-half of all deaths in this country, taking almost a million lives each year.

Serving with Mrs. Bennett as leaders of the 1964 drive are Dr Louis Fishman, cardiologist and staff member at Princeton Hospital, who is acting as medical advisor; Mrs. Theodore T Tams Jr., chairman of volunteers; and Mrs Arno Mayer, director of public relations and information for the 1964 campaign. Dr. Fishman was the first chairman of the hospital's cardiopulmonary laboratory when it was instituted two years ago.

Mrs. Bennett, who has been chairman of the Princeton Heart Fund Drive for the past two years, reports that in 1963 $7,210.76 was raised during the campaign. This was accomplished chiefly through the efforts of the 28 captains and 272 workers, all volunteers, who participated in the house-to-house canvass.

In accepting again the chairmanship of the Princeton drive, Mrs. Bennett cited the fact that one of the important pieces of equipment in the hospital's cardiopulmonary laboratory, a pH meter, was purchased with the help of a grant from the Mercer County Heart Association.

She added: "Research advances in the cardiovascular field have extended and made more productive the lives of many thousands of people. With more funds the Heart Association can expand the very important work of heart and circulatory diseases. I know that the residents of Princeton will strongly support the Heart Association's health crusade with voluntary efforts and contributions.

HEART FUND LEADERS FOR 1964: Dr. Louis Fishman, cardiologist and Princeton Hospital medical staff member, describes the importance of the pH meter, purchased with the help of a grant by the Mercer County Heart Association, to (from left) Mrs. Clifton C. Bennett, Mrs. Arno Meyer, and Mrs. Theodore T. Tams Jr. Mrs. Bennett is chairman and all four are principals in Princeton's 1964 Heart Fund Drive. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Would you like to see overhead Christmas lights strung up and down Nassau Street?

Where asked: Center of town.

Mrs. Alan Morse, 124 Snowden Lane, housewife: Yes, I would like it if it is done in good taste and I think it can be. I think it's nice: I think it's colorful, I think it's gay. It's part of the season.

Mrs. Eunice Urken, 27 Witherspoon Street, owner of Urken's Supply Company: Yes, I think it not only adds to the season — it's colorful — but I think it would induce people to shop more in Princeton rather than go to other towns. Even a little town like Kingston has lights. A lot of stores in Princeton don't even bother to decorate inside.

Mrs. Edward Bamman, 18 Rollingmeade, housewife: I don't think I would. I think there is enough Christmas spirit here without them. I think with the lighted tree in Palmer Square and a lot of decorated store windows that that should be sufficient.

William Kiefer, Great Road, retired: I don't see why a town that has the number of people and the money that Princeton has — why they don't do it. I think it would be nice. It doesn't mean much to the people who have a lot of money, perhaps, but it does to those who are less fortunate. It shows that someone is thinking about them at Christmas.

Miss Agnes Smith, 31 William Street, clerk - typist: Princeton is such a small town — there is really just one main street — that there's not enough room to have Christmas lights. If it were a little larger, I think we should have them. But I like the way it is right now.

C. Howard Hunt, 6 Shirley Court, assistant pastor, AME Mount Pisgah Church: I certainly would. It shows the town is interested in the spirit of Christmas. A town without lights during the Christmas season is dead.

Mrs. Kay Rodrigues, New Brunswick, food checker at the Nassau Inn: No, because it is done in every other town. I think it would be nice for Princeton to remain as it is — conservative, in very good taste. I think the window decorations are enough without a lot of lights. I like it just as it is.

Donna Eshelman, Oak Lane, Hightstown, Princeton High School freshman. Yes. It's just nice to see them; it gives the town more of a spirit of Christmas. People from out of town come in and they think it's dull here. They ask, What's the matter: don't they celebrate Christmas here?

Mrs. Maxine Moore, Random Road, housewife: It depends on how it is done. If it is done in good taste — not too loud or garish but dignified — yes, I would like to see them.

Paul Hofmann, Slackwood, retired. No, I personally feel when you have too many lights, it takes the spirit out of Christmas. It becomes too commercialized, too honky-tonk.

Miss Madalene Bowser, 25 Green Street, employee, Princeton University cafeteria: I would love it. It would make it more beautiful, it would make it seem more like Christmas time. And it would mean a lot to the children, especially those who are old enough to understand Christmas. The older children would enjoy it, too. In my hometown, they always had overhead lights and it was very beautiful. I miss them. They're a beautiful sight for little children to see.

Mrs. V.M. Sewell, 226 Birch Avenue, housewife: I don't think they're necessary. I can see all the light I want to just by looking at the tree at Palmer Square. That's enough for me.

Mrs. Dorothy Ellingham, Wertsville Road, Hopewell, clerk at The Fabric Center. Yes, I would. It brings more of the Christmas spirit; it brings it home to the people. And they're attractive. It's a festive time of the year. To me, it's amazing that they don't do something here.

William "Rick" Haldane, 456 Ewing Street, Princeton High School freshman: Yes, for a change. I think it would give the town more Christmas spirit.

Seymour Mauskopf, Graduate College, history of science: Yes, I'd like it. I'd be in favor of a little Christmas cheer. I think it would make Princeton a little more festive.

Mrs. Allen Kirschner, 32 Randall Road, teacher: Yes, I think it would be nice. It would liven up the town.

Eugene Waters, Colonial Club, Prospect Avenue, waiter: Yes, I would, really. I think it is very artistic and I believe it is what the people would want this time of year. It helps to illustrate the holiday. I think they would be nice, I really do.

Carol Henderson, 267 Russell Road, sophomore, Princeton High: I think it would be nice. It gives you the feeling of the Christmas spirit. I can't think of any other time you might have lights strung up and I think there's something missing here at Christmas.

Neil Woodrick, Lawrenceville Road, caretaker: Yes. We always had them at home and I feel they added to the season — it made it a little more Christmas-ish.

ART In Princeton

ARTIST'S FIRST SHOW At Present Day Club. During December and into January, the Present Day Club is giving a young Princeton artist her first show of paintings. Shirlee Loret came to Princeton four years ago, starting at that time to paint seriously.

Most of her previous training was in the field of education; she had taught second grade classes, and even now she is teaching art at the Princeton "Y" for children, second grade through sixth, children who must have "a particular interest in art, not just a desire to take something home to mother." She tries to make this "painting experience" a game but more so an education and works out her classes with experiments.

She is teaching her pupils a sense of color by excercises in mixing the three primary colors and constructing whole pictures with their variations. She is teaching them a feeling for line; for instance she will write the word "happy" on the blackboard and ask them to express this mood in line. Next term, she hopes to explore different media, one at a time, and then to take her students to see exhibitions of work done professionally in that medium.

Practices Self - Education. Mrs. Loret is concentrating on educating herself in painting, a new and absorbing interest. Four years ago, for fun, she and her husband started on a painting-by-number book.

With the left-over poster paints, she struck out on her own, painting decorative and imaginative pictures for her home. Four framed paintings of birds are representative of this period and show a formal sense of organization in space and color.

She posed for classes at the Studio-on-the-Canal, absorbing much from the instructors' comments and then, herself, studied with Hughie Lee Smith, under whom she has painted her strongest portrait, "Lina." She considers that "each portrait is a learning experience," and with her models who are children and friends, she is working to combine figure, design and personality. "Suki," a dark-eyed child with a solemn gaze is heavy on personality.

Landscapes On View. Mrs. Loret's landscapes, for the most part imaginary wood scenes, are not consciously influenced by Cezanne, but she has approached them with a feeling for warm and cool light through a pattern of tree trunks. She likes best a simplified picture of bare trunks curving over a brook, though the more complex scenes seem to carry more air and mood.

Among her many technical experiments, there are two examples of pen and ink; a drawing of "California Hillside" which is a nice composition in contrast of light and dark, and "Two Figures", well drawn. "Flowers," an uncommon subject for Mrs. Loret, and done with palette knife and clear color is a clear statement.

Mrs. Loret is painting seriously and with discipline, as yet with no allegiance to any particular school. She is still experimenting and discovering, encouraged by having a landscape, more abstract than those shown here, accepted for the current Mercer County Tercentennial Exhibition and encouraged by this, her first one-man show at the Present Day Club.

Lighthearted and Under 100. For the Christmas Show, Gallery 100 caters to the light in heart and purse. It is a show described as "Under 100," referring to dollars, and "lighthearted, but not relentlessly so."

Mrs. Betty Adams who has chosen the items, felt that with the current vogue for so much gloomy dark stuff, these happy things would be refreshing and gay. They are that, numbering paintings, graphics, sculpture, pottery, jewelry and "atitchery," all pieces to be sold under $100 and available immediately.

Paintings on brown paper in colored ink for a child's room or playroom are done by Ann Wiseman, a gifted young artist who has just moved to Princeton this fall. She has painted an orange and pink Sphinx, not only with delightful humor but with real understanding of the Classic Greek; her unicorn is more gentle and sweet with the flavor of French tapestries; a lion is enormous and round eyed and all puce colored; but most gay is a Princeton tiger which this time has turned pure cerulean blue, very pamehy and entirely pleased with himself.

Prints from Paris. Graphics include an assorted group of prints from Paris, several Richard Florsheim city prints and an extremely interesting selection of work by Mel Silverman. The versatility of this New York artist is amazing.

His "Tuscany", for instance, is an etching, lithograph and woodcut all on the same print and the rendered Rennaisance architecture comes forth with various textures and is alternately thick or thin with ink. Another blue and white print is a collage plate with layer upon layer of metal applied on the original plate until you get almost a repousse effect.

"God's Architect", a combination of all church architecture, the Mosque, Cathedral, Onion Dome, etc. is at the same time a combination of lots of impressions on one plate. You can even see the faint tracery of a lace doily among the blended tones and facades. "Walls of Acra" is one of the few straight etchings, and in its simplicity has great strength.

Sculpture. Sculpture in wound wire is by Waylande Gregory and definitely for fun. An ostrich, a cook, a cat whom you can bend to suit your fancy and a rather naughty bull, all have "aggies" for eyes and a purpose to amuse.

However, Mr. Gregory is quite serious about his pottery, the method of which is his own invention and patent; a fusing of glass and ceramic in which the ceramic is fired with the glaze already on it. The result is unique and intriguing. We remarked that it reminded us of looking through water, and were told that, as a boy, Mr. Gregory had loved to fish through ice and had been spellbound by the underwater world.

Later he experimented in potting until he found a way to represent this effect, through fusion under intense heat, glass volitalizes and forms icycles or "glassicles." A sculptured fish in this composition can be seen through vaguely, though his outline is firm and his eye steely. Ash trays which are more useful may be blue grey pottery outside and inside a crackled-ice fusion of palest green.

Pottery. Pottery by Rosemary Taylor is humorous in intent. "Adam and Eve" are shown with a movable snake and a very large shiny red apple. A beguiling little animal must be "Roo" and for challenge to the flower arrangers there are containers with a difference, dark brown monks whose heads are hollow to stuff with dried or fresh flowers. Pottery by Dean Mullavey is sophisticated, each piece a work of art, and well known to Princetonians are the lovely vases and planters done by Sally Kunstadter.

Brass. A collection of brass objects come from Thailand and India. Odd little Thai opium weights are in the shapes of mandarin ducks, griffins and lions, and for serving betelnuts to your guests after dinner, there is a splendid all

TWO OF THE 40: Bill Bradley is a picture of concentration as he goes in for a layup while four interested Army players watch. The Princeton junior made half his team's points in Tigers' 80-to-73 victory. (Tom Miner Photo)

SPORTS In Princeton

HELP NEEDED

Bradley a One-Man Team. Ten players have seen action with Bill Bradley in Princeton's first two basketball games this season, and if one or two of them do not begin to average in double figures as December wears on, the Tigers will have a great deal of difficulty defending their Ivy title.

Good as he is — and he's making shots he did not try last winter — Bradley cannot continue to account for half the Tigers' points. Of the 139 they made while losing to Villanova (72-59) and beating Army (80-73), the 6-5 All-American accounted for 72 — well over 50%.

Following Wednesday night's trip to Easton to play Lafayette, the Tigers will go to Annapolis Saturday for an afternoon game with Navy. They'll play their final home game for a month Tuesday at 8 against winless Rutgers.

Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff's problems are severely complicated by the physical condition of Captain Bill Howard and Don Roth, two of last year's regulars who were a month late reporting for practice because of the extended football season. Howard, who suffered bruised kidneys in the last game against Dartmouth, did not even dress for the two contests in Dillon Gym last week

Rebounding Needs Help. Roth at 205 pounds is about ten pounds over his best weight for basketball, and there is no telling when either player will first see action. Both are essential to the team's best play, particularly in rebounding, a department in which Princeton is having visible trouble

Biggest question of all, however, is who will provide the outside shooting that Art Hyland gave last year's championship quintet when the opposition sloughed off on Bill Bradley. Behind by a point (33-32) at the half, the highly-regarded Wildcats left Tiger backcourt players virtually unmolested while double and some times triple-teaming Bradley.

The Tigers star still made 18 points in the last 20 minutes to finish with 32 but no one else could produce more than nine and that sort of imbalance told the story. Ranked in the first ten nationally, Villanova went on to gain revenge for the upset Princeton administered — with Hyland as captain — a year ago in the Wildcats' Mainline field house

A 5-10 junior who did not play last season may come along to fit into the picture. He is Wally Uhle, a versatile, agile guard who was elected captain of the baseball team at the end of his sophomore year.

Willing to Shoot. Uhle has not yet earned a starting berth, but he isn't afraid to shoot when the opportunity is there and he drives in well if there is an opening. Van Breda Kolff is trying all sorts of combinations as he seeks to bring the Tigers along for their title defense, regarding the December schedule as preparation for the main show despite the national spotlight it will occasionally turn on the touring Princetonians.

Sophomore Ed Steube has exhibited a good outside shot but is inexperienced defensively. Against Army, he had ten points in the first half but sat out much of the rest of the game with four personals.

In the two Dillon Gym contests, Van Breda Kolff started senior Rick Wright, junior Bill Kingston and sophomores Bob Haarlow and Steube with Bradley. None of them saw as much action as starters normally do. Van Breda Kolff shuffling in Chuck Berling, Don Nicman, Bob Rodenbach, Bob Baughan and Uhle to ascertain what his top ten players could produce

Berling got off the bench in the Army game to hit on seven of eight from the foul line and contribute 11 points to the victory over the cadets. Kingston did well in holding Villanova's captain, Wally Jones, to a lone field goal and four fouls, but hasn't contributed a point in either game and may not retain his starting assignment.

Villanova Too Deep. Considered the top eastern quintet with New York University, Villanova had far more depth than Princeton could match, taking control early in the second half. The visitors' adept zone defense concentrated on the forecourt, gave the home team the outside shots it could not make and blended with it an attack that produced three players in double figures. The combination broke the game open with ten minutes left.

IN HALL OF FAME: Ferris Thomsen, Princeton lacrosse coach, has been named to the Lacrosse Hall of Fame on a basis of 32 years' of achievement as a player, coach and official. His Tiger teams have won seven consecutive Ivy titles.

Army's big operatives were as rough as most teams from the Point are, and when a pair of somewhat inexperienced officials called a total of 58 fouls, the cadets paid the price. Midway through the second half, with the outcome hanging in the balance three Army players fouled out within the space of a minute and Princeton took over to gain a split for the week.

Bradley, playing with a patch on his cheek that covered five stitches taken when he got an elbow in his face late in the Villanova game, was superb. The errant passes he had thrown in the opener were curtailed; he hit on 14 of 26 from the floor and 12 of 15 from the foul line and was a defensive standout as always.

His 40 points tied the Princeton one-game record he set against St. Joseph's in the NCAA playoff last March. Help is needed, however, to the extent that Bradley need account for no more than a third of his team's total rather than half. At the moment, it's hard to tell who the other double-figure players will be, but fortunately there are ten games left before Ivy action begins in which they may develop.

TWO GAMES FOR SKATERS Play Here This Weekend. Even on the season at 1-1, Princeton's hockey team will play a pair of games this weekend in Baker Rink. Colgate will provide the opposition Friday at 8, with Northeastern here Saturday at 2.

Both teams may be more than the undermanned Tigers can handle, with Northeastern markedly the more difficult. The Boston area sextet is well staffed with sophomores who learned their hockey in Canada and has already trimmed Yale handily, 7 to 3.

Williams became Princeton's first victim of the season Friday night as Coach Norm Wood's operatives skated to an easy 11-3 triumph. Junior Em Hall led the scoring parade with four goals, while sophomores Mike Spence, Bert Bruser and Gordie Park each made two apiece.

Hall tallied first at 10:35 of the opening period, with Pony Fraker getting an assist. These two teamed up again five minutes later and the Tigers took a 3-1 lead into the dressing room at the end of the period. They led 7-1 after two rounds, getting off 48 shots in all during the evening.

SWIMMERS IN ACTION Two Meets Here. Brown will come to Dillon Pool Saturday at 2 for Princeton's third swimming meet of the season. The Tigers lost their first two to Villanova and North Carolina and were scheduled to face New York University this Wednesday. Navy will come here next Wednesday, December 18, for the first Eastern Intercollegiate League meet of the season on the Tigers' schedule.

Jed Graef, Eastern backstroke champion, is the team captain. Lack of depth in the freestyle events is Princeton's biggest problem this winter, but the Tigers did break the University mark in the 400-yard relay despite losing the event to North Carolina. The time was 3.23.7

HIGHTSTOWN TO TEST PHS

In Friday Opener. The Hightstown High School gym is not a large one and it may not be able to contain the explosion which will surely be set off should the Rams defeat visiting Princeton High Friday evening in the basketball opener for both schools. And for the first time in years that is exactly what might happen.

On the face of it, PHS should have little cause for concern. It has momentum, winning 30 of its last 38. From last year's squad, coach Tony Brozok inherited four returning lettermen, including three starters. In addition, the bench has been considerably strengthened this year by the appearance of two highly promising newcomers — Jim Tucker from Maryland and Ron Pulling from Oklahoma.

Normally, the Little Tigers look upon their County neighbors as nothing more than an opportunity to fatten their win column. But this year Hightstown figures to be much more formidable. This is the season for which the Rams have been pointing.

Ram coach Cliff Brautigan is on record as saying, "This may be one of the best teams that I have ever coached here at Hightstown." The source of his optimism is not hard to find. Among the five returning Hightstown lettermen are last year's three top scorers. Heading this trio is junior Bob Philips, 6-3, who averaged 13 points per game last season.

Frank Brown, the playmaker who will guide the team from the floor, averaged 8.3 points per game. Another junior, Tom Weidner (8-point average) is a top rebounder, although an injured ankle will make him somewhat of a question mark in the early part of the season. And, like Borzok, Brautigan can count on strong reserves.

More so than for Princeton, the PHS-Hightstown game is one of the games for the Rams. According to Borzok, Hightstown has two seasons: Princeton and the rest of the schedule. "Anytime they beat Princeton, they feel they've had a successful year," said Tony. "It's a real feather in their cap."

Spirit Is High. Following a scrimmage against South River on Friday, Borzok reported that his squad was ready, that the first five are working well together. The rest of the squad accepted this, he continued, and are doing everything to try to help them. "The spirit is good."

While Borzok was satisfied that his players would be ready for Hightstown, he voiced some concern about the "closeness" that would be part and parcel of the contest. Here Tony was referring in essence to the small size of the gym, the closeness of the hometown onlookers, the noise they would generate.

"They'll make a lot of racket," he said. "Some youngsters don't mind it but some may let it get to them, especially since this is the first game. What are you going to do when the roof falls in?" asked Tony, not necessarily expecting an answer.

So the stage is set for drama. The oft-beaten smaller school waits in its lair for the invaders. Both schools boast strong teams, laced generously with returning lettermen. Both have strong benches. And both stress defense and ball control.

True, one game doesn't make a season. But seldom will a game answer so many questions so early in the season.

First Five Set. At the moment, Borzok is satisfied he has assembled the best starting quintet possible. Barring unforeseen last minute changes, Tony will go with 6-4 Pete Heiberger at center, Tom Walers (6-3) and Larry Madden (6-0) forwards. Dave Hill (5-9) and Jim Case (5-11), guards. After the tap, Heiberger and Waters will take the corners, Case and Madden the wings and Hill the outside.

Of mild concern to Borzok is the failure of Hill, a streak player, to score with any consistency. Should Dave falter, Tony has a "strong replacement" in the form of Kerry Klink. Klink is a hustler, but what he hustles is a basketball.

Against South River, Klink did very well in the back court. Said Borzok, "He showed good action working the ball in, he took over command of the club. On defense, too, Klink stood out by harrassing the opposition in numerous ways."

Other replacements in Borzok's scheme include, Pulling for Case, Tucker for Madden, Pete Webber for Waters and senior Dave Turner for Heiberger. Just how set this plan is will be determined in large measure Friday evening.

HUN OPENS THURSDAY

At Bryn Athyn. The Hun School basketball team will open its 1963-64 season Thursday afternoon, traveling to Pennsylvania to meet Bryn Athyn in a Penn-Jersey League contest. Following this the Red and Black will not play its second game until January 8 when it opens at home opposite George School.

Guarded optimism" are the two words which best sum up coach Bob Simpson's outlook of the upcoming season. He is hopeful of improving last year's 5-8 record, 5-7 in Penn Jersey League play—but he underlines that he no more than hopeful. And it is this that Hun has a problem.

It is lack of height. Of Hun's three returning letter men, all are under six feet.

Any height will have to come from Frigye Sletland, a 6-3 transfer from Williston Academy in Mass. or from 6-4 Kevin Nevils, a reportedly much improved player up from the jayvee squad. Sletland is expected to start at center.

The team will be anchored by Scott Page of Trenton, a junior and team captain. An accurate marksman, Page will be counted on heavily to provide much of the scoring for Hun.

The two other returning veterans are cutterman Ted Isaacson, a senior, also from Trenton, and Mike Leon, a junior, who was voted last year's Most Improved Player. Additional help is expected from another Trentonian, Mike Miller, a sophomore. He is an outstanding backcourt player and Simpson reports he will probably be the fifth man on the floor.

Rounding out the squad are Dick Eckles, Al Marens, and John Webber, all juniors up from the reserves, and Bob Rothstein, a senior. Larry Noble, a junior transfer student from Pennington, may see action. Finally, Scott Anderson, a sophomore who, like Miller, is being counted on to help the team. He and Eckles are the only Princeton residents on the squad.

SEASON UNDERWAY

For Lawrence. Lawrence High School athletic teams are now in their first full week of the winter season.

The hockey team, which opened with an 8-3 victory over the Franklin and Marshall Hockey Club Saturday, will face the Cranford Hockey Club this Saturday. The Red and Black opposed the Princeton University freshmen Wednesday. The three matches will serve as warm-ups for the annual Lawrenceville Invitation Tournament scheduled to begin December 20.

In a pre-season line-up the basketball squad lost to a school alumni team, 68-61. The Larry five opened the season Wednesday against Polytechnic Preparatory and will travel to Pennsylvania Saturday to play the Haverford School.

The strong Red and Black swimmers begin their season Saturday in a home meet with the Lehigh freshmen. That will be their only meet until after the Christmas holiday break.

In the only other competition last week, Princeton's freshmen defeated the school wrestling squad 26-3. The Lawrenceville wrestlers oppose Bordentown Military Institute and Huntingdon Central High this week. The bowling team will open against the Rutgers Junior varsity freshmen and the first meet for the track team is with Princeton High.

BOWLING NOTES

Jughaus Closes Gap. Joe Boldino bowled a 251 game in the "B" League last week as Jughaus Delicatessen drew to within two points of league leading Kase Kleaners.

Kase holds a 54-52 edge over its nearest rival and leads Halestreet by four points. Besides Boldino, five bowlers equalled or surpassed the 200 mark. They were Tony Tamasi, 212 and 201, Harry Kahuy 211, Fred Procaccini, 204, Bill Dumble 201, and Frank Maddaloo, 200.

Colonial Restaurant won three straight in the Three Man Classic League to go three games up on winless Johnson Electric 23-20. Turney Motors and Labey's were tied for third with 18 victories apiece.

Gene De Ristel led the individual bowlers with a 234 contest. He was followed by Vic Wyszocki 224, Joe Boldino, 213, Mike Basile 213, Vince Graziano 204 and 203, Ernie Hunt 208, Val Ranallo 207, Joe Trunil 202, and Larry Golden, 200.

In the Nassau League, Tiger Garage swept its three games to move into a tie for first place with Nassau Delicatessen. Each team has 48 points and leads Grover Lumber by two.

Nick Sculecatti rolled a 186-293-209-617 series to sweep scoring honors. Walt Weigryn trailed by two pins with a 221 contest. Narrowly missing the 200 pin level were Mike Kopp, 199, 195, Larry Christensen, Val Ranallo and Bill Dumble 194 each, Ed Dayton 192, Bill Kiefer, 191, and Pete Homan 190.

Hook and Ladder II held a three point lead in the Tri-County Firemen's League, 51-48 over Kingston. Rocky Hill is in third place, four points off the pace.

George Kirby had the top game, 222, and Harold Dayall the high series, 200-213-175-588. The others to surpass 200 pins for ten frames were Dave Willon, 213, Walts Brown, 204 and Gib Ireland, 202.

Jefferson Plumbing broke its tie with Nassau Shoe Repair in the Business Women's League with a three game sweep that brought its total to 54 points. The runner up team, winless last week, has 48 points.

Lillian Burrough had a 181-178-160-519 series to lead the league. Margaret Drummond had a 177 game and Melia Fowler combined two 171 contests with a 159 score for a 501 set total. Del Silvester and Julian Ball each bowled a 168. Betty Fato, 167, and Jean McDowall 160.

"Y" DIVERS WIN MEDALS

In Meet Here Last Saturday. The Princeton YMCA Flying Fish Club played host for the N.J.A.A.U. one meter diving meet here Saturday at the "Y" pool. Three of the Princeton group won medals.

David Bush placed first in competition for boys 14 and under. Jill Agadjanian won the event for girls in the 11 and 12-year age group, and Nancy Wise placed second in the contest for girls 13 to 14 years old.

Additional Princeton entrants included David D'Atri who placed seventh among boys 10 and under. Charles Hector who finished ninth in the same event. Valerie Stone and Colleen Hector, who placed fourth and fifth among girls 11 and 12 years old, and Kate Shepard, who placed tenth among girls 14 and under.

The meet was entered by 39 competitors from New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Donald Bush, of the Flying Fish steering committee, was director of the meet.

WHY JOHNNY CAN'T PLAY

Toys Should Teach. (Time and place: December 25, 11:30 a.m., in almost any American household with young children. Setting: A living room in which the temporary dominant features are a Christmas tree and a huge number of plastic and metal objects called "toys." Six-year-old Johnny is looking pensively out the window while his parents are busy in the room gathering up a small mountain of torn Christmas wrappings.)

Johnny's mother: "What's wrong, Johnny?"

Johnny: "I wish I had something to play with."

His bewildered parents don't realize it, but Johnny's wish is justifiable. And nobody knows it better than two Princetonians, Frank Caplan and Bernard Barenholtz, co-founders with their wives 12 years ago of Creative Playthings, Inc. They are busily doing something about it:

Citing the statistic that 70 percent of all toys sold are the flimsy eye-catchers which trap parents and disappoint children at Christmas time, Mr. Caplan and Mr. Barenholtz say with conviction: "A toy is not a once-a-year temporary diversion. It's a child's means of learning—sometimes the only means by which he can explore his world and enlarge his experience."

"What thoughtful parent," they ask, "would give his youngster his quota of toys at Christmas and ignore the child's developing abilities to learn through doing for the ensuing year? Parents should give high priority to the toys with which their children can learn about the physical world and its processes."

What Is a Good Toy? They add, "Playthings that are constructive and that present a youngster with extended play rewards far beyond the 'ooh-looky' reaction are toys which afford him the opportunity to create something. They also give him an introduction to aesthetic pleasure through their form and design and make it possible for him to express himself through actions such as painting, role-playing and learning for himself through his own experimentation."

These are the exact qualities which the over-priced, over-packaged non-toys lack and the reasons why they disappoint Johnny and consequently his parents.

Here are some words of advice from Mr Caplan and Mr Barenholtz to parents on what to look for and what to avoid when buying Christmas presents for young children:

Look for toys that are relatively simple in detail and which thereby give free play to his imagination. Just because a toy train, for example, appeals to a grown-up because it is a close replica of a real one doesn't mean that it will mean as much to a young child.

Highly detailed models are too demanding of as-yet-unlearned skills. The result frustration and rejection rather than satisfaction and acceptance.

Buy Toys That Last. "Make sure that the toy will hold interest throughout the following year," is their recommendation. There are raw materials of play which serve a child's play needs all year long and often longer.

Among these are large-size blocks, sturdy figures of people and animals, trains, cars and busses that will stand up under rough and constant use, painting and drawing equipment, strong climbing apparatus. These are the things which nursery school and kindergarten teachers look for; and they, of course, have to buy materials that will last both in interest and over a long period of time.

"Also," Mr. Caplan advises, "be sure that the child can enjoy the toy without a grown-up's help." Don't buy toys with complicated blueprints for use and assembly, toys which don't allow the child to invent or discover for himself.

Don't try to buy Johnny a year's supply of toys for Christmas. Don't forget, he will be a very different individual by next June. A child's learning process is a year 'round procedure.

Keep Gadgets Small. If you can't resist buying Johnny a gadget, keep within the one to two dollar range. Make it a stocking-stuffer and not the supposedly important, long-use toy. Don't waste a child's all-year learning opportunities by holding him back with a gimmicky assortment of Christmas presents.

Other essential points which Mr. Caplan and Mr. Barenholtz urge parents to consider when gift-hunting for their young are a toy's appearance, safety, adaptability, correctness of scale, narrative value and curiosity arousal characteristics. For example:

CREATIVE: Above, a picture of some of the many unusual toys developed by Creative Playthings Inc. at its design center near Princeton. Included are examples of transportation toys sculptured in wood by Antonio Vitali and pieces from a building-block set made of hard-rock maple. At right, the firm's founders and co-directors, Bernard Barenholtz (left) and President Frank Caplan, watch as happy shopper Martha Pardee, 2, tries out one of Creative Playthings' slides. For some sage advice on Christmas toy shopping, see story, this page. (Staff Photo)

- Appearance: Is it handsome in shape and color? Does it show the grain of the wood? Is it elegant in material? Is it good to touch, beautiful in line, interesting in texture?
- Safety: Is it sturdy? No sharp edges? Smooth, well-finished surfaces? No loose buttons or small pieces to swallow? Non-toxic paint?
- Adaptability: Can it do what a child wants it to? Can it bend? Can it stand? Can it sit? Does it move easily? Can it fit into various play settings?
- Scale: Does the "man" fit the car? The "family" fit the furniture? Are the trucks and trains in the right proportion? Does it help the child understand about the size of things?
- Narrative Value: Does it tell a story? Does it engender interest in the child in other lands, other customs, other times.
- Curiosity Arousal: Does it attract a child's interest? Does it let the child experiment? Does it let him find things out for himself, without instructions?

If a toy meets these requirements, say Mr. Caplan and Mr. Barenholtz, then it is a good toy. And this is the kind of toy which they, as co-directors of Creative Playthings, continue to develop in large number at their company's offices and showroom on Edinburg Road between Princeton Junction and Highlstown.

Postmaster to Retire.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

This letter is to inform the patrons of the Princeton Post Office that I am retiring from the position of Postmaster on December 30, 1963. I am retiring from office with 42 years', 3 months' service.

During the month of March I was stricken with a very bad attack of arthritis, and I have been away from the office on sick leave since that time. I have been advised by my doctor to retire from my position. Up to that time I had no intention to retire from my position. I miss very much going to the office each day, and I also miss seeing my faithful employees and meeting the public to provide good postal service.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all the employees of my office who have served under me for their fine cooperation in the performance of their duties, and also my appreciation to the general public and patrons of my office for their splendid cooperation during my administration.

Upon my retirement, I would feel remiss if I did not mention the very great need for a new post office in our community. When I was appointed acting Postmaster July 1, 1949 my first project was to obtain a new post office.

Through the past 15 years I have worked towards this goal and my dream for a new office was nearly realized. I do wish to express my sincere gratitude to the committee on the Post Office Project, organized by the Greater Chamber of Commerce, who worked very hard and closely with me to achieve a new Post Office.

A Town of Hypocrites?

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Last July, if I recall the date correctly, TOWN TOPICS printed a letter from The Princeton Association for Human Rights reporting an episode — far from unique — but disgraceful in Princeton annals. The letter recorded the fact that an elderly and highly respectable Negro couple, lifetime residents of Princeton, who had with considerable difficulty obtained the rental of an apartment in a white neighborhood, felt compelled out of the sense of charity characteristic of their race, and out of consideration of the wellbeing of their prospective landlady in view of threatened reprisals against her, to forego their legal rights to the apartment.

Since then, Princeton has mustered more than six busloads of citizens to march on Washington proclaiming Princeton's devotion to civil rights, and has just recently declared itself 73% in favor of open housing.

Meanwhile, on at least two other occasions, this couple has been refused available host-cost housing. To date, no one has made any proposal to solve this problem.

Could we be a town of hypocrites? Are we more concerned to park our cars convenient to shopping areas and to erect profitable office buildings than to house our citizens? If so, God help us all when our Negro citizens decide they have had enough.

Help Offered on Library.

To the Editor of Town Topics.

As a friend and user of the Public Library in Princeton, I have been alarmed by the lack of a sense of urgency in regard to the implementing of our new library building.

What part of the three-year time limit has already slipped by? Will the site be stacked with cars instead of books?

What can the interested citizen do to demonstrate enthusiastic support to the Trustees of the Library and to our local governing bodies so they may complete the task as quickly as possible?

Borough Lacks Candor.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of an open letter to R. Kenneth Fairman, Mayor of Princeton Township:

As a resident of Princeton Township I am greatly concerned by the apparent lack of general interest of Township taxpayers in the proposal by the Princeton Borough Board of Education to construct a new elementary school complex entirely within the present boundaries of Princeton Township.

The proposal of the Borough to construct a new elementary school is probably overdue. The necessity for erecting the school in the Township has not been demonstrated other than in the desire of Borough authorities to convert their two existing tax-free school plots into commercial ratables with the overriding requirement that any purchaser make an annual school support payment in addition to the general realty tax.

The Borough prides itself in lower tax rates than the encircling Township, the primary reason being the prior lack of necessity to build new schools. Now faced with obsolete plants, the Borough apparently hopes to maintain the low rates at the sole monetary expense and physical inconvenience of of Township taxpayers. This appears to be the fundamental issue presently before the Township Planning Board . . .

The total lack of candor exhibited by Borough officials in dealing with, or more properly, attempting to avoid dealing with, the Township, leads inescapably to the conclusion that there are problems which the Borough does not wish to resolve prior to assuming ownership of the new facilities.

If this breach of common courtesy is to be repaired, it should be done by the issuance of a clear statement from responsible Borough officials indicating the steps they intend to take to:

(1) Compensate the Township for the extra services required by a school complex of the sort they envision;

(2) the present inconvenience to Township residents caused by closing of roads and the inevitable expense of constructing alternate cross-town routes on land containing homes and businesss structures;

(3) the immediate reduction of tax revenues represented by removal of the Bradley property from the Township tax rolls.

There is no reason why the Township should not cooperate fully with any reasonable solution to the situation created by the Borough. There is, however, no reason why the Township and its taxpayers should be burdened with inconvenience and expense for the sole benefit and enrichment of the Borough; such a situation could be tolerable only after full exploration and review by the Law Courts and litigation in matters of this nature is rarely in the best interests of the parties.

VITAMIN SLEUTH HERE

Egs Three Drug Stores. Three Princeton pharmacies have been penalized by the state for alleged violation of the pharmacy regulations. It all started with a little bottle of vitamins to which a touch of fluoride had been added.

As is generally known, the hundreds of items on sale in a drug store are divided into two main categories prescription and non-prescription. Customarily, on a prescription item, there is this legend clearly painted in the center of the label "Caution Federal law prohibits dispensing without a prescription."

Sometimes, however, the pharmaceutical manufacturers' package designers seem to be more concerned with aesthetics than with legibility. And this is what tripped up the Nassau

Person To Person

Cary S. Kammier

The other day, we were reminded of two very well known proverbs. He who hesitates is lost" and "Look before you leap." Remember them? Funny thing about them is that they contradict each other! After all, if you are going to look, you have to be idle, and if you don't look it could be a pretty disastrous leap. And if you hesitate there you are lost again. Well it's all pretty confusing, and perhaps the answer is that man cannot live by proverb alone. It takes a lot of common sense, judgment and experience to know how much of which proverb to apply in what situation. We find this to be true in our business too. Each problem that we deal with is different, and we must use our common sense, judgment, and experience to decide which is the best way to serve you—to solve your particular need. We believe in individualized service, and we'd like to serve you. What can we do for you? Kammier Buick Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport. WA 1-2222

Pharmacy, Marsh's and Liggett's in a recent visit paid them by a Bermuda shorted, hair endowed woman posing as a customer, who was really an undercover agent of the state.

At all three stores she asked a clerk to sell her a bottle of Poly Vi Flor, a vitamin supplement containing a bit of fluoride for children. The potential danger of the mixture, according to a number of pharmacists, is far less than that in a bottle of aspirin, which can be bought as easily as a loaf of bread.

But Poly Vi Flor is a new preparation and therefore classified as a prescription item. And the manufacturer instead of printing the cautionary legend front and center for all to see worked it in as a hard to spot part of the package design.

The fact that it was a new product, an innocent looking vitamin preparation and an inefficient job of legible labeling set the trap. The agent sprung it.

The result: Nassau Pharmacy was penalized in the amount of $300 and Marsh's and Liggett's $100 each. The agent did not reveal her true identity to the store of completing the purchase, according to the owners, nor was there even any subsequent hearing held to establish the complete authenticity of the alleged infractions. Hence the exact reason for Nassau Pharmacy's higher fine is still unknown to the owners.

One of the store owners first heard about the penalty in fact, was when a friend said he'd read about it in a newspaper.

TAMS MADE A DIRECTOR OF the First National Bank. Theodore T. Tams, Jr., Princeton attorney and Borough magistrate has been appointed a director of the First National Bank of Princeton. Mr. Tams who has been Borough magistrate since 1957, was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court earlier this year.

At the present time, Mr. Tams is chairman of a New Jersey Supreme Court committee on municipal courts and a member of the Supreme Court's criminal procedure committee. In addition, he is a member of the New Jersey Bar Association, trustee of the Mercer County Bar Association and a deacon of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Tams was admitted to the practice of law in New Jersey in 1949 after graduation from Rutgers Law School. He served as an officer in the air force during World War II and was bombardier and radar operator on several missions over Japan.

Married to the former Lorraine Pohalski, he lives with his wife and four children at 99 Snowden Lane.

TWO DIRECTORS NAMED By Princeton Savings & Loan. Election to the Princeton Savings and Loan Association board of directors of George R. Griffing and Ralph S. Mason has been announced by B. Franklin Bunn, president of the financial institution. Mr. Griffing and Mr. Mason succeed the late John F. Huff Sr. and William R. Lewis, who have resigned.

The two new members have both been municipal office holders. Mr. Griffing, president of Matthews Construction Co. has been a member of Borough Council and the Borough Zoning Board. Mr. Mason, partner in the law firm of Mason, Griffin, Moore and Cook, is a former mayor of Princeton Township and former chairman of the Township Planning Board.

Both have been active in community organizations. Mr. Griffing is a former Community Chest chairman and former vice-president of Princeton Hospital's board of trustees and Mr. Mason has been president of the United Fund and the Chamber of Commerce in Princeton.

In addition to Mr. Bunn, Mr. Griffing and Mr. Mason, the Princeton Savings and Loan board of directors includes John H. Graver, Harry B. Warren, Carl C. Schafer, George R. Conover, Raymond C. Brickley, Albert Salzman and H. C. Stoughton.

THREE PROMOTED At Gallup & Robinson Inc. Three employees at Gallup & Robinson Inc. have been promoted, according to an announcement by I. F. Parvis, president and chairman of the board. The Princeton based firm specializes in advertising and marketing research.

Robert L. Weiss has been named director of administrative services, Mrs. Louise G. Stuppleheen promoted to director of personnel and special print studies and Miss Cynthia J. Raymond named assistant director of special print studies. All three promotions are effective immediately, Mr. Parvis announces.

Mr. Weiss, a life long resident of the Princeton area and a graduate of Cornell, will be responsible primarily for purchasing public and community relations and office management. Before his promotion he served as personnel manager of the firm.

Mrs. Stuppleheen who has been with Gallup & Robinson for eight years, is a graduate of Lane Commercial College and also an alumna of Western Reserve University. Miss Raymond, a Lasell College graduate, has previously been secretary and research assistant at the organization.

VW AGENCY OPENED Adjacent to Airport. Ceremonies were held last week to open officially a new Volkswagen agency on Route 206 adjacent to Princeton Airport. The agency will be known as Princeton Motors.

Sen. William E. Ozzard participated in the dedication ceremonies held by Charles H. Rosen and Harold E. Schwartz, owners of the new firm. The agency held an "open house" through Saturday, with the public invited to inspect the office's facilities.

The full 1964 Volkswagen line is now on display. The agency is one of more than 750 independent dealers of the German made car in this country.

OFFICES BEING BUILT By H. G. Houghton Firm. A one-story, or possibly two-story, brick office building, Colonial in style, is being erected at 145 Witherspoon Street by H. G. Houghton and Son. The building, scheduled for completion by this coming Spring, will be 44' x 90' in width and depth.

According to the builders, the structure will house commercial and retail establishments on the ground floor with professional offices possibly added as a second floor. It will have a ten-foot set-back from the street.

NEW VW AGENCY OPENS: Harold E. Schwartz, second from left, cuts the ribbon to open Princeton Motors Inc., new VW dealership on Route 206. Mr. Schwartz, vice-president of the firm, is flanked by (from left) Stephen Kolina of All Star Builders; R. W. Josenhaus, VW representative; State Senator William E. BREAK FORTH!

Choirs to Sing. A concert of Christmas music will be given next Thursday, December 19 by choral groups of Princeton High School and a woodwind ensemble of music students at the school.

The program, an annual event, will be given in the Princeton University Chapel at 8:15 under the direction of Thomas Hilbish. The public is invited to attend.

Before the choral music begins at 8:15 the woodwind ensemble, under W. R. Horner, will play a group of Christmas carols.

The featured work will be the Cantata 191 by Johann Sebastian Bach with a duet from the cantata sung by Julie McLean and Peter Sly. Margery Anderson and Joseph McKee will sing a duet from Bach's Christmas Oratorio and the choruses will sing, Beside Thy Cradle, from the Bach work.

Portions of the Midnight Mass for Christmas by Marc Antoine Charpentier will be sung by Janet Stump, Peter Sly and Joseph McKee. F. J. Gossec's Petit Chant de Noel, Agnus Bruckner's Christus Factus Est and a motetus by Jospuin de Prez will also be on the program. Penny Smock, Janet Stump, David Hilbish and Robin Hatton will sing Heinrich Schutz's De Nativitate Mortbe.

The Freshman Vocal Class will sing a chorus by Johann Pachelbel and Mathilde Mc Kinney's "The Shepherd" and the program will conclude when former members of the choir join the vocal groups in "Break Forth O Beauteous Heavenly Light" from the Bach Christmas Oratorio and the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's "Messiah."

THE PRESENT MOZART

At Choir College. The Princeton Symphony and the Westminster Choir College symphonic choir will present

Lois Marshall

Mozart's Mass in C Minor K. 427, Monday at McCarter Theatre. The program will be sung at 8:30.

Nicholas Harsanyi, founder of the symphony, will conduct. Heading the list of soloists will be Lois Marshall, a soprano. Miss Marshall, a native of Canada, has given concerts throughout the world, including performances during four tours of the Soviet Union.

Accompanying Miss Marshall on the flute will be Julius Baker, a member of the Bach Aria group. He is the soloist in the opening number, the Concerto No. 1 in G Minor for flute and orchestra. Mr. Baker has been first flautist with the Pittsburgh Symphony and the CBS Symphony in New York.

Other soloists include Doris Yarick, mezzo soprano, David Bender, tenor and Ramon Kyser, baritone. Dr. George Lynn is the director of the Westminster Symphonic choir.

Formerly at Westminster. Mrs. Yarick, a resident of New York City, is a former member of the voice faculty at Westminster and an alumna of the school. Mr. Bender, who has studied at the choir college, is a member of the City Center Opera Company.

Mr. Kyser is minister of music at the Covenant Presbyterian Church in Trenton. He is a member of Westminster's voice faculty and a graduate of the choir college.

He has directed the choir in phonic choir in a performance of the Mozart Mass in the Grand Hall of the Philadelphia Art Museum last Friday. The concert was televised by station WFIL-TV, affiliate of CBS in Philadelphia.

Tickets for Monday's concert may be purchased in advance at the University Store. They will also be available at McCarter the day of the concert.

MARLBORO TRIO HEARD

In "Extra" Concert. Monday evening at 10 McCosh Hall the Marlboro Trio—Michael Tree, violin, Mitchell Andrews, piano and David Soyer, cello—in recital—was presented in the first outside the Series concert.

The Trio chose music that encompassed about 100 years of trio writing. The first offering was Trio No. 20 in B Flat Major by Haydn.

In many ways Haydn is a difficult composer with which to begin an exciting program because of the necessary "jeff" in the rhythms of the ornaments. With all the performance was clean and concise.

Haydn was attached to the trio form having written thirty-five in all, this being the twentieth. Perhaps a later one would have been a better choice.

The second piece of the evening was Robert Schumann's Trio No. 2 in F Major, Opus 80. This is the second of three by the man with the hidden poetic concept and except for the third movement is typical Schumann in that the work is tuneful, melodic and possesses a lively gaiety.

The second movement of this trio allows the cello to emerge with its own expression. The third movement, while charming, lends itself to a Chopin salon style, while the fourth movement returns in very business-like activity to unmistakable Schumann idioms and again with beguiling transitional cantabile.

After intermission Five Brief Pieces by Bohuslav Martinu were played. Four of the five sections were involved with allegro treatments while the second movement was an adagio and a bit longer than the others.

The first allegro was organized in "chunks" of rhythmic vehemence. The next example was a busy, busy presto.

The allegro moderato was a whimsical treatment and the final allegro con brio was an "ender." Each movement was a study of a single idea with a rise and fall shape and compositionally were in the style of a Central European composer who had gone to Paris to be influenced. These pieces were played extremely well by the Trio who seemed best in the mimic exposition.

The final work of the evening was the Trio in D Minor Opus 120 of Gabriel Faure. All three movements were pervaded by the playfulness and mellowness of this great French song writer whose music casts a delicate spell and who preached, "Clear thought, pure form and sobriety."

The so called piano trio is a strange and difficult medium for which to write expressively. While the piano lends itself admirably as accompaniment to either cello or violin, it more often than not seems a minor connecting instrument between the two. Generally the piano would have to play a gentle cantabile to succeed in this medium or play one of lamp volume.

All three instrument leads of The Marlboro Trio are extremely skilled and musician-ly. So much so that one would like to hear them in solo capacities. There were very high expressive moments from each artist as well as some fine chamber music cohesiveness. Still the fact remains that more often than not the piano trio medium has natural obstacles to overcome.

Generally, Robert Schumann's trio was the most successfully expressively in the evening. The music seemed to be of the right size dynamically with correct harmonic texture. It abounded in melodic freedoms and made sobriety-late in the ear music that is merely hard to play.

"SOUNDS OF CHRISTMAS"

By Columbus Boychoir. J. S. Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" will be featured by the 71-voice Columbus Boychoir in its traditional Christmas program next Friday, December 20, at McCarter. The children's matinee will be at 3 and the evening performance is at 8:30.

A male adult chorus and orchestra will join the choral group in the "Sounds of Christmas" program of new and old Yuletide music under the direction of Donald T. Bryant. The background and story of the Bach oratorio will be explained by the choir director.

The concerts will also feature selections from Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" and songs from the choir's recording for Firestone "Your Favorite Christmas Carols," made with Rise Stevens and Brian Sullivan.

Special group rates are available for school children through Lauren D. Raine director of the Boychoir School. Regular tickets are $1.50 for children and $2.50 for adults at the matinees, $3 and $4 for the evening show.

The Boychoir has just completed a concert tour appearing in Boston and New York with the Boston Symphony in Britten's "War Requiem" directed by Erich Leinsdorf.

A CHOIR OF ANGELS. These five Princeton High School students will be soloists when the choral groups of the high school give their annual Christmas concert next Thursday in the Princeton University Chapel. News Of The CHURCHES

WITHERSPOON APPROVES

Backs Presbyterian Merger. The session of Witherspoon Church endorsed on Monday the Presbyterian union proposal of the Princeton Presbyterian Commission. The vote was nine elders in favor; two opposed.

Commission members, drawn from each of the three churches involved, will meet in January. First Church is said to have withheld approval of the union proposal; Second Church has endorsed it by a vote of 16 to 6, with one elder abstaining.

"The next step is to entertain the viewpoint of First Church," says Leonard F. Newton, Commission chairman. The Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, pastor of Witherspoon Church, adds, "We will be continuing to work together in this unity commission. We'll be seeking other avenues of mutual, cooperative effort as a Presbyterian communion in Princeton."

Also before the Commission is the Second Church dilemma originally assigned for consideration: whether Second should repair its century-old sanctuary on Nassau Street—or build a new church on a 10-acre plot on Pretty Brook Road. The ramifications of fund raising and service to outlying areas led the Commission to consider the larger picture of the role of Presbyterianism in the Princeton community.

TEAM MINISTRY SET

At Witherspoon Church. Five men and a woman from Princeton Seminary will form a new team at Witherspoon Presbyterian Church. They replace the Rev David H. McAlpin Jr. associate pastor, who has left to head Coventry Church, East Detroit, Mich. (See "Man of the Week.")

"The team ministry approach is something new," says the Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, pastor. "Each member of the unit will have specific assignments in relation to the session, the committees on worship, stewardship and Christian education.

"One will be the parish administrator, co-ordinating elders and deacons. Two will be assigned to pastoral visitation. Each team member will lead worship service for a month at a time."

Team ministry members are Richard Elliott, Dean Tucker, George Neal, Larry Lewis and Don Baird; Fay Dickerson will serve in Christian education. Also new to the church is Leon DuBois, as choir director.

CATHEDRAL SERVICE SET

At Second Presbyterian. "Nine Lessons and Carols," the English cathedral Christmas vesper service, will be held for the first time in Princeton at 4 30 p.m. this Sunday at Second Presbyterian Church.

The candlelight service will be presented by the Rev. F. Hugh Liffiton, pastor, and the combined chancel and collegiate chorales, directed by Ralph Farris, Mrs. Kenneth R. Wight will be at the organ.

Lay readers at the service are Samuel Adams, David Baer, Jeffrey Buchanan, Cynthia Cronk, Sarah Hunter, Kenneth MacLeod, Eric Perkins and Patricia Schafer.

The public is welcome at the service. A nursery will be provided.

Fund for Oswald's Family

An anonymous donor has started a fund at Trinity Church for the family of Lee Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy.

The church notes that "Mrs. Oswald's future as a stranger in this country is most uncertain, and since she will undoubtedly be marked and sometimes discriminated against because of her marriage to Lee Oswald, an action of Christian charity towards her is most appropriate."

The fund will be kept open for one more week. Gifts should be mailed to the rector, the Rev. Robert R. Spears Jr.

CHRISTMAS CRECHE: Two-year-old Mary Weller Sa'id, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Majed Sa'id, stares thoughtfully at a German creche on exhibit at the Acquinas Foundation, Stockton Street and Library Place. The Acquinas Guild has on sale paintings, liturgical records, religious books, creches, crucifixes and missals for children and adults after all masses and from 2 to 5 this Sunday. Mrs. Nicholas Clifford is chairman. (Staff Photo)

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

At Kingston Church. The three choirs of Kingston Presbyterian Church will present a Christmas Festival of Sacred Music at 4 p.m. Sunday. The choirs, consisting of 70 voices, are directed by Mrs. John Bowman.

Mrs. William Voorhees Jr. is organist for the cherub choir and youth choir. Mrs. Edwin Rian is organist for the adult singers.

Eight parts of Handel's "Messiah" will be sung by the adult choir, as well as several old French carols.

Members of the senior group include Mrs. Ray Gibson, Mrs. Carl Benninghoff, Mrs. Richard Guertler, Mrs. Max Hopkins, Mrs. Charles Mauser, Mrs. Alexander Robinson, Miss Karen Evans, Alfred Gaissert, Anthony Baionno, John Bowman, Mrs. Ruth DeVries, Miss Janice Wolf, Ling-Chi Wang, William Habada, Mr. and Mrs. Don Ecroyd, Mrs. Eugene Darnell, Miss Maria Pizzaro, Matt Hollander, James Pizzaro, Harold Freeman, David Wheeler and Halsey Allen.

A reception will follow the program, arranged by Mrs. Edmund Farris and members of the music committee.

BULLETIN NOTES

New Elders. Edward Faroe and David G. Buchanan will be ordained and installed as elders of Rosedale Chapel at the 11 a.m service this Sunday. They replace two deceased elders, Garret S. Boetsma and George A. Hough.

Christmas Vespers. The Princeton University Chapel choir directed by Carl Weinrich, will give its annual Christmas vesper service at 3.30 p.m. this Sunday. The program will consist of "Hodie apparuit" by Lassus, "Angelus ad pastores," by Monteverdi, "O Magnum Mysterium" by Morales, "Joseph, lieber Joseph, mein" by Schroter, and a group of Christmas songs by Practorius.

Family Carols. Three choirs will sing at the Christmas Family Night this Sunday at First Presbyterian Church. Miss Anna Royer will direct the Carol Choir; Mrs. Mary Krimmel will lead the Junior Choir, and a men's group from the adult class will also sing. Students and others not in a position to furnish food for the 6:15 p.m. buffet supper are welcome.

Greek Mission. The Rev. Spiros Zodhiates, general secretary of the American Mission to the Greeks, will speak at 7 30 p.m. this Sunday at Westerly Road Church. The Mission does relief work in Greece as part of its evangelical mission.

Assembly of God. Frank A. Mazzarella is serving as chairman of the Princeton Assembly of God Christmas party, set for 6:30 p.m. this Saturday. Assisting him are Frank Cuomo Jr., Charles Muni, Nina Cuomo and Jenny Totaro.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO

December 11, 1958. The Shopping Center, under the watchful eyes of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association was being used each Sunday as a kind of miniature Indianapolis Speedway. Jitneys, or "karts" as they are known in California, were scooting around the empty parking lots. Pawered by lawn-mower motors, the jitneys were competing in races while the P.B.A. kept careful check on safety and operating procedures.

Graphology was making news. Karl Aschaffenburg, 22 Moran Place, was reported in TOWN TOPICS in 1958 as one of the very few people in this country who practice the analysis of handwriting as a serious profession.

Mr. Aschaffenburg, in commenting on the aid of such analysis as a key to personality traits, had said that one thing that always aroused his suspicions was the perfect copy-book script — that it was either an indication of someone without much personality, or that it could be a facade for a warped personality. As example, he had recalled the exquisite and flawless-penmanship of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish "match king" — Kreuger had perfect handwriting and, of course, turned out to be a perfect crook.

Princeton's football team, having lumped Yale 47-12, had come into Palmer Stadium tied with Dartmouth for the Ivy League championship. The Indians, however, had run off with the wampum, 21-12.

TEN YEARS AGO

December 10, 1953. That picturesque but perennial problem bridge at Kingston had been the scene of another accident, only this time the bridge had been something of a help to police. Three teenagers in a stolen car had been arrested following a four-mile, bullet-punctuated chase.

The bullets hadn't stopped the fugitives, but the bridge did, demolishing the car in the process. Injuries were minor, and the three soon found themselves in the hoosegow on car theft charges.

Princeton's fire department had answered a false alarm the preceding week — no new experience. The reason for the alarm was new, however: a woman who understood English with difficulty had asked directions on how to mail a letter from a gardener who spoke English with difficulty.

The result, which had occurred at the corner of Library and Hodge, was that she had picked the red box instead of the green one. He had waited around to see what happened, she didn't.

One left over from 1953's football season: a woman still enjoying a pre-game drink while her male escort was showing obvious signs of getting frantic to leave for Palmer Stadium commented: "I can't see why you have to make sure you get there for the kick-off. They always have another one to open the second half."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

December 9, 1948. "No news is good," according to TOWN TOPICS in 1948. "The little items in the news stand out," it said, "because they symbolize the lack of it — in a sense the lack of unrest in 1948 Princeton." Among the little items:

- The fire department had just elected Henry Kenarney chief for 1949, had named William Larkin and Horace Dickey as first and second assistants. For the first time in memory, however, not a single fire — including police calls — had been recorded during the preceding month.
- The mayor and council had received a petition that bicycles be licensed. They also had just passed a resolution that no parking be allowed on the east side of Bayard Lane and the west side of Chestnut Street.
- The Triangle Club, facing extinction if it duplicated the previous year's dud, had delighted everyone who saw the 1948 production by coming up with a "genial, tuneful show."

That was about it in early December 1948 . . . except the added intelligence that painters had found a bees' nest under the eaves in Borough Hall.

"RESIDENTS OF PRINCETON"

What We Stand For:

We endorse systematic planning, co-ordinating Borough, Township, and University. We stand for Princeton as a primarily residential and educational community for people of diverse occupations and incomes.

Our Function:

To keep citizens informed on municipal planning and zoning issues, to encourage the participation of Princeton residents in community planning. We cooperate with other organizations having similar objectives.

Our Accomplishments:

We promoted the idea of an adult education course in planning. It was held last fall as part of the Princeton Adult School program.

We launched a committee to save historic and architectural landmarks. This formed the basis of the Princeton Preservation Committee which, in order to carry out its program most effectively, has since merged with the Historical Society of Princeton.

We have held monthly meetings, open to people who want general information or wish to discuss specific neighborhood problems.

We maintain a Watchdog Committee to attend planning and zoning meetings.

At public hearings we have officially endorsed:

- an improved housing code
- a uniform building line on Nassau Street
- acquisition of land for the Public Library
- acquisition of property on Harrison Street for public housing for the aged.
- preservation of certain houses of public interest.

Our Next Aim:

To increase our effectiveness by issuing a Newsletter.

What We Need:

Your participation and interest. Your help on editorial or watchdog committees. A small financial contribution. Please check, sign, and mail the attached coupon.

One of Princeton's old homes, on a beautiful, secluded lot in the Western Section, close to the center of town, has been listed with us for sale. The house is brick, large and rambling and wonderful for a family to grow up in. It has a delightful quality of simplicity and charm and is in very good condition. There are five bedrooms and three baths on the second floor and three additional bedrooms and a bath on the third floor, which can be shut off if not needed. The first floor has large living and dining rooms, both with fireplaces, sitting room, pantry, kitchen, laundry and lavatory-cloak room. Outside there are large open porches, a sunny, flagstone terrace, two car carport, a garden tool house, lovely lawns and trees and ample parking space. Possession can be given in about six months.

Framed by handsome spruces, hemlocks and pines, this one-story shingle house has two way possibilities. Perfect for a retired couple, it has living room with fireplace, combination kitchen-dining room, 3 bedrooms and bath, all sunny, clean and sizeable. The grounds are small enough for easy care; but a long sweep of neighboring lawn gives a feeling of space with, happily, no need for maintenance. The house also has good growth possibilities (the present owners have plans and estimates); and the appealing location makes expansion worthwhile. Whether you want it small or stretched, it could be a bargain, as the owners must leave town. Asking price $26,000, but offers will be submitted.

INTERESTING POSITION OPEN SOON

TOWN TOPICS will have a position in its Advertising Department open early in 1964. Duties involve planning display advertisements with Princeton area merchants, including copy-writing and layout. Previous experience helpful but not essential—if we feel you have the right qualities and you like working "on the outside" with people, we will train you.

This is not a "9 to 5" job—hours will vary depending on day of the week. Compensation ranges from time off for extra hours worked to steady salary increases based on performance, annual bonuses and participation in company profit-sharing plan.

Applicants should write rather than call, giving brief resume on employment and biographical facts; marital status, date of availability and salary requirements. We are interested in discussing the position with both men and women.

WE NOMINATE

David Hunter McAlpin, Jr., who this week — some seven years after he accepted his "first pastoral call" as Associate Pastor of the 121-year old Witherspoon Presbyterian Church — headed for mushrooming East Detroit, Michigan, where on Sunday morning he will deliver his inaugural sermon as pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church. Here in the community in which he "grew up," and which has benefited greatly from his "coming of age as a Christian leader," McAlpin, a month away from his 36th birthday, leaves a legion of friends and a remarkable record of service on what could well be called "the most significant new frontier" of this decade.

In January, 1957, the Fourth Estate made much of McAlpin's installation as the associate of Benjamin J. Anderson, a 1961 nominee for Moderator of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church. Some journals stressed his designation as the "first white pastor to serve a predominantly Negro parish in New Jersey"; others recalled his New Jersey-New York lineage; and some his 1953 marriage to the former Joan Rockefeller. Through it all, McAlpin with characteristic calm maintained: "I don't see anything unusual or spectacular about my new position. It's quite natural for me, quite natural for the Witherspoon congregation, and quite natural for Christians."

Few individuals here have labored longer, or more effectively, or more quietly, than McAlpin has over the past seven years for the things he believes in. Vitally involved in the broad issues of human rights and the development of community leadership in advancing inter-group relations, he has in large measure sought to find solutions by working closely with underadvantaged individuals and family units. Several years ago, in discussing his aspirations, he wrote to a Princeton University classmate: "I am a guy who is struggling to grow into a fairly happy and creative way of life, making slow progress with a long way to go."

No kind of an "organization man," and skeptical of those who use statistics to measure progress in the area of human relations, McAlpin has still been a wheelhorse in a variety of organizations. President of the Mercer County Association for Mental Health, following several years on the Association's Governing Board, he has been prominently identified with Planned Parenthood, the NAACP and the Princeton Association for Human Rights and has been cited for his services to the United Negro College Fund, the Mercer County Board of Recreation Commissioners, and Princeton Township's Board of Assistance. And a short year ago, he quietly launched the Princeton Youth Center.
